113 Woody Kelly victims recoup little in lawsuit

by GLORIA DAVIS

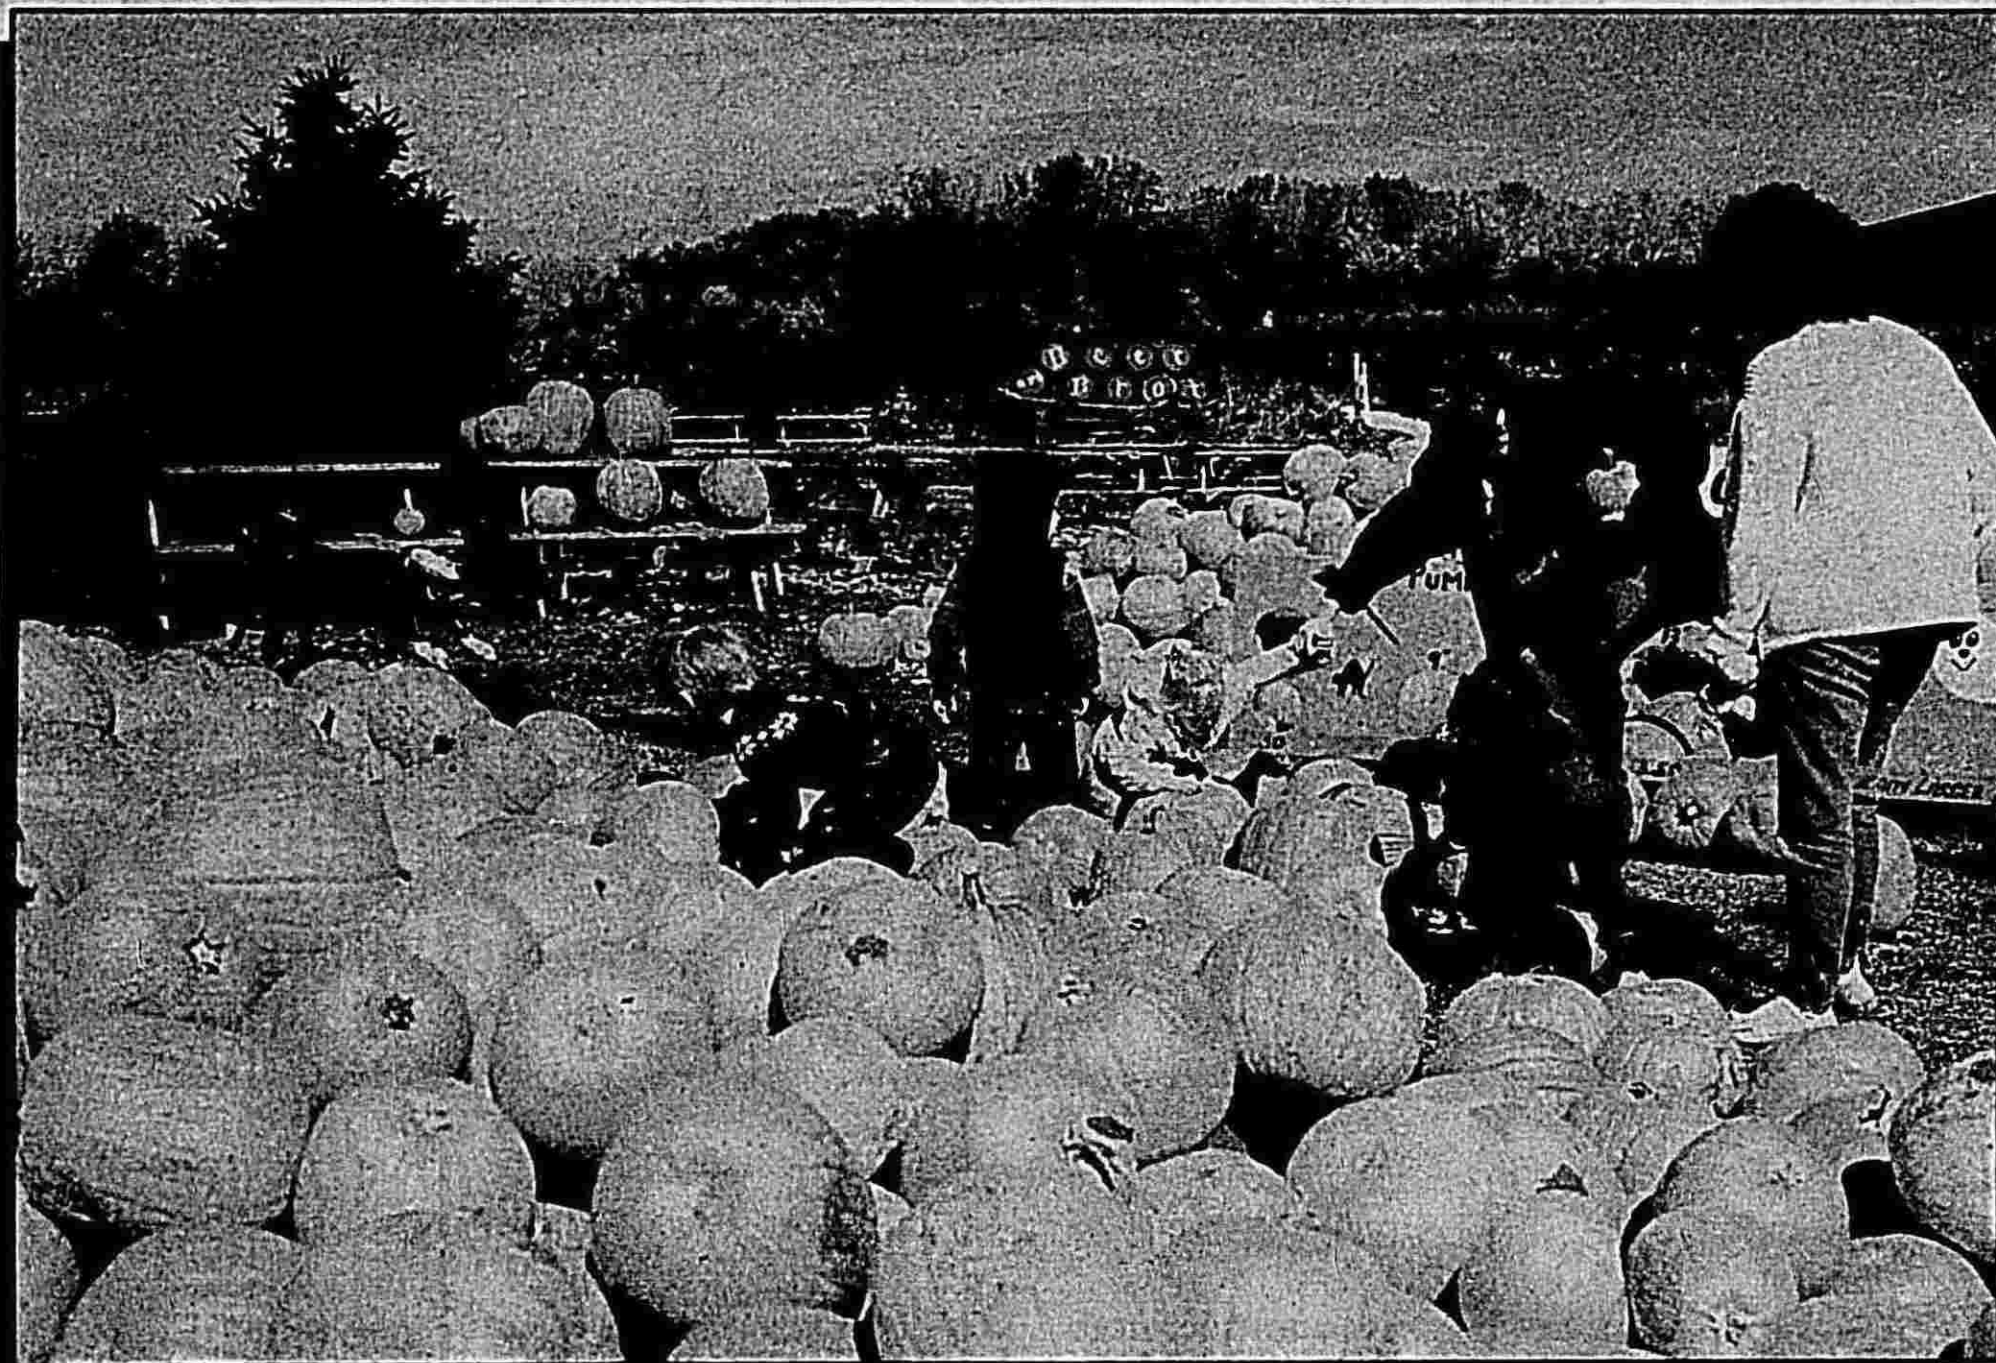

With litigation instituted by one Antioch businessman, Don Peterson, owner of Barnstables, pending in Lake County Civil Court, another 113 area investors in Woody Kelly's second deeds and mortgage deals, might receive some small compensation for their ill-advised investments in Kelly's allegedly bogus business dealings.

The 114 investors claim that the Antioch Trust Co., now Northern States Trust in Waukegan, should have done a better job of protecting their IRA and pension fund investments with the trust company instead of allowing the investments with Kelly.

Rick Wohleber of the law firm of Chapman and Cutler, Chicago, attorney for the trust company, contended that these people took their own risks since the money invested was in self directed and self managed accounts.

The class action suit never reached the courts. A settlement of approximately $127,000 was made by the trust company with the 113 investors of the $600,000 invested with Kelly through the trust company.

Peterson, who also invested part of that $600,000, filed a separate lawsuit against Antioch Trust because he did not sign the same documents with the trust company that the other 113 investors did.

Halt McManus pact See page 5

According to Peterson's attorney, Paul Zagoras, Waukegan, the trust company is not being accused of anything but being an "unwitting conduit" in Kelly's dealings "that should have known better."

Paul Pavelski who was the president of Antioch Trust at the time of the investing, now with Northern States, said that he would not comment "because the whole thing isn't over yet."

Kelly, whose whereabouts are still unknown, is accused of bilking hundreds of people from Lake County, Wisconsin and Florida of over $6 million.

Pumpkins, pumpkins everywhere!

It's Jack-O-Lantern and pumpkin pie time again. Danielle, Nicole, Jason and James Coolidge are probably hoping to find 'The Great Pumpkin' among hundreds waiting to please every kid and pie lover in Lake and Kenosha counties. 1987's

Cops after all speeders on Rte. 173

After receiving a report from the state that over 50 percent of the motorists going through Antioch on Rte. 173 are speeding, the village board has asked the police department to concentrate on slowing motorists down, especially between the township office and the bowling alley.

The speed limit in the area is now 45 mph. The traffic survey was done by the state when the village made a request that the speed limit on the state highway be lowered to 35 mph.

Before the state will consider lowering the speed limit, the village will have to show that it has control over the speeders.

More radar will be operating on Rte. 173 during the month of October, with a report on its effect forthcoming.

More than 1 meatball at Scouts' spaghetti dinner

Antioch's Boy Scout Troop 92 has announced that they will host the 27th Annual "All You Can Eat" Spaghetti Dinner on Sunday, Oct. 18.

The dinner will be held at the Antioch Moose Lodge 525, 884 Main St., Antioch. Dinner, including "all you can eat" spaghetti and meatballs, bread and butter, coleslaw, dessert and beverage, will be served by Troop 92 Scouts between noon and 7 p.m., with the best seating between noon and 4:30 p.m.

Donation is $3.50 per person, with children under six years of age eating free. Tickets can be purchased in advance from any Troop 92 Scout, and they will also be available at the door.

Dinners will also be available on a "carry-out" basis; individuals are asked to bring their own take-home containers.

This troop tradition has become a primary means of financing many of the Scouts' activities, including camps and field trips. Scoutmaster Bernie Dost, in his 27th year of service at the dinner, will serve this year as Chief Chef.

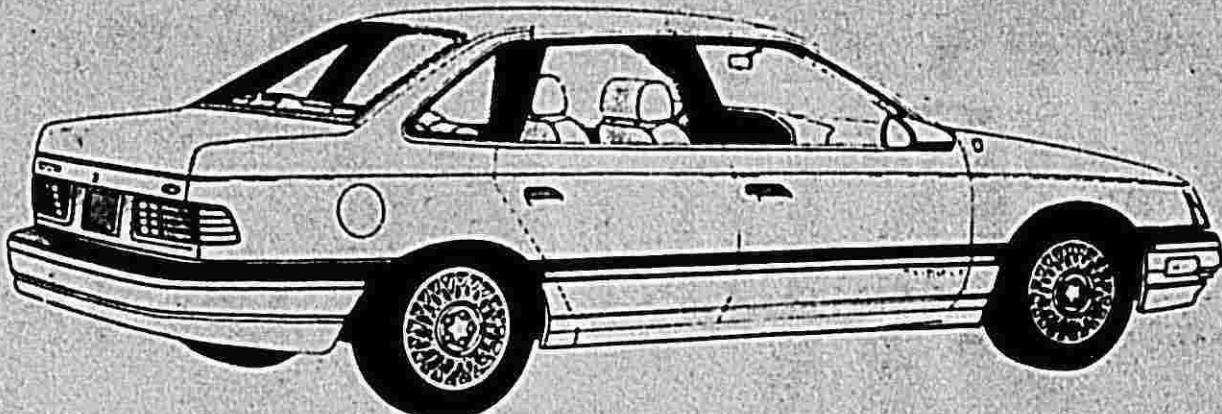

Assisting Chef Dost in the kitchen will be Tom Aschbacher, Jay Bruski, Ray Harting and Ron Rock.

Troop 92 committee chairman, Harold Clark (a.k.a. "Chief Scalpum") reports that he and his "Squaw for the Day" Carol Ann Weston will conduct several mini prize give-aways throughout the afternoon, and a number of special prizes will be given away. Prizes have been donated to the troop by area merchants.

Boy Scout Troop 92, Antioch, is sponsored by the Loyal Order of the Moose Lodge 525.

One week last month in our Cardiac Rehabilitation Center
we taught
6 heart attack patients about the dangers of cholesterol, monitored 3 bypass patients riding exercise bikes
...and put one former mailman back on the right route.

We help people in all walks of life.

Nothing is ever the same after a heart attack. But while most people fear the worst, with the right kind of exercise program . . . and the right kind of lifestyle adjustments . . . many patients return to their jobs and their families even healthier than before.

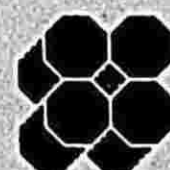

The Cardiac Rehabilitation staff at Northern Illinois Medical Center is specially trained to help these people take the first steps toward resuming full and active lives. We understand not only the medical and physical aspects of rehabilitative care, but also the emotional component so vital to a patient's complete recovery.

Like helping a man who marched through rain, snow, sleet and hail every day for forty years realize the importance of one 10-minute jaunt on the treadmill.

Cheese still available at township hall

According to Antioch Twp. Sup. Jim Fields, the engineering for the drainage project for Felters Subdivision has been completed and the township will be accepting bids on the project funded by a Community Block Grant during October.

Finances halt agreement with McManus, Towne tells court

Tim Towne of Country Towne development explained his firms dealings with developer Thomas McManus before Lake County Associate Judge Stephen Walter Friday.

During testimony, Towne said a contract was not signed with McManus regarding Evergreen or Casidas subdivisions. The two subdivisions were part of Towne's Country Towne development off Washington St. in Gurnee.

"We discussed terms of the contract but we did not come to terms. We never gave McManus permission to sell the lots. Finances were out main constraint," Towne said.

A letter of credit, a commitment letter or proof of financing were factors which stopped negotiations, Towne said.

Towne said he did not know of the financial condition of Great America Homes.

Also, Towne said that a sign advertising Evergreen subdivision was built on Washington St. without the permission of Country Towne. The sign was about 1500 yards east of Almond Dr. and was later removed by McManus.

Towne discussed the lot reservation agreement which his firm uses.

"It is used to tell prospective purchasers of the status of their property," Towne, a Libertyville developer, said.

Another aspect which dominated testimony Friday was McManus' business practices in regard to the custom and practice of real estate firms in Lake County.

Towne said it is not the custom to advertise lost for sale without an approved plat.

It is not custom and practice, Towne said, to sell a lot before the home builder has executed a deed agreement or if the mortgage has not been executed.

The preliminary hearing was in its second week before Walter.

NFL football problems don't dampen Antioch's grid interests

by CAROLYN HAMMOND
(312) 395-6081

It's that in-between time when the early fall rush gives way to a slower pace. You've met your children's teachers; we've had our first frost; grass-cutting has almost come to an end (you hope); and the NFL attempted to slip one by the fans, figuring they are so crazy about football that they would pay big bucks for a ticket anyway. Right on the first three and wrong on the fourth! Yes?

Meanwhile in Antioch, football is still the name of the game. The Antioch Sequoits continued their winning ways with their second win, this time, 21-14, over Mundelein. At one time in the game,

Antioch was down 14-0, but fought back to another victory. Keep it going guys! Nice job! There are high hopes for the future, too, as the sophomores are victorious also winning their first game of the year.

It will be a big football weekend starting Oct. 10 as the Warren Blue tailback who blocked a punt, picked up the ball, and ran it to score. Even reserve quarterback Jeff Fogel added six more points with a quarterback sneak. Topping off the scoring was kicker Nate Ovitt who kicked three field goals for a total of six points. In Junior Tackle football, kicks are harder than runs in and get two points.

Offensive honors for good blocking go to tackles DDavid Remter and Dan English. Defensive honors go to defensive guard Scott Jones and defensive end John Stedl and Cornerback Jason Ferris.

The Heavyweights are now 3-0 in conference play. The Lightweights, in a 20-0 loss, dropped to 1-2. However, Sunday, Oct. 11 starts the first of three weeks of challenging football when Winnetka comes to the ACHS field to meet the Vikings head-on.

Starting time is 12:45 p.m. for the Lightweights with the Heavyweight game immediately following.

The next two weeks the Vikings play Highland Park and Round Lake—both powerhouses. Come on out and support our boys. They'll give you an exciting afternoon of play, and the cost is free!

Speaking of excitement, think of 12 little girls rushing around chasing a hockey puck and waving a stick (not too high, hopefully). It sure is cute, especially the little ones. Results for the Girls' Iceless Hockey League: First-Second Grade: North Stars 7, Blackhawks 0; Sabers 6, Red Wings 2; Bruins 4, Maple Leafs 1; Kings 4, Rangers 2.

In the third to fifth grade-Red Division: Islanders 5, Rangers 4; Flyers 6, Red Wings 5; Blackhawks 10, Maple Leafs 4; Sabers 11, Whalers 5.

In the third through fifth grades-Yellow Division: Blackhawks 7, Rangers 4; Penguins 6, Islanders 5; Whalers 7, Bruins 3; Red Wings 7, Flyers 3.

Don't forget the Country Cousins Craft Fair, one day only, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 10 at the Antioch Scout House, 741 Main St.

Blood pressure tests

The Lake County Health Dept. will hold free blood pressure testing at the Antioch Public Library, 757 Main St., from 2 to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 14. No appointment is necessary.

Pledge

Susie Belli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Belli of Antioch, has pledged the Beta Omicron Chapter of Delta Delta Delta, social sorority at Illinois State University. She attended Antioch High School and is currently enrolled as a sophomore in accounting/finance.

News & Notes

Sequoit Freshman whopped the Mundelein frosh, 63-0. The Devils come to town trying to put an end to the Sequoit winning streak. Be there! Also don't forget Antioch High School's Homecoming weekend is almost upon us. Festivities begin the week of Oct. 19 with the parade, games and dance on Oct. 24.

The Antioch Viking Junior Tackle Football Heavyweight team is still on top of the heap with a 43-7 win over Fox Lake. Scoring plaudits to tight-end and reserve fullback David Nolte for two TDs; to split-end Matt Beattie who caught a 40-yard pass from quarterback Tom Lehn and ran for a TD; to safety Tom Lehn who intercepted a pass and ran 40 yards for a TD himself; to Tim Lehn,

Corporation, Council work for Halloween safety

This year area schools are participating in the Super Safety Trick-Or-Treat Program for Halloween.

This free Halloween safety program is produced by Sampling Corp. of America, in cooperation with the National Safety Council and the sponsors which are listed on the trick-or-treat bag and throughout the parent safety insert.

All of these companies and brands are interested in the safety of children.

Closer to Halloween children will bring home the Super Safety Trick-Or-Treat Bag and some other elements. The bag has safety air holes and is printed in a special, non-toxic fluorescent ink, making a child carrying it more visible to motorists.

Halloween can be a more enjoyable time for all if children are encouraged to follow some safety rules, such as those printed on the bag.

Look for fun and important additional safety information along with special offers/coupons from participating sponsors in the Parent Safety Insert located inside each bag.

When children bring home the Super Safety Trick-Or-Treat Bag, be sure to go over the safety rules on the bag with him/her.

The bag contains a Super Safety patch, also printed in fluorescent ink, for additional safety. This patch is to be put on the back of a child's costume or outer clothing to further enhance their visibility to motorists.

Remind children about the importance of not using or eating anything collecting by them when trick-or-treating--until parents have inspected every item.

Schools have been provided with material to help inform the community about Halloween safety information so that everyone can be extra cautious of children at this time.

Enclosed in childrens Trick-Or-Treat Bag is an insert containing more safety information, party recipe ideas, party game ideas, makeup tips and costume ideas along with special offers from the sponsors.

The participating sponsors are very proud to provide children with a way to make his/her Halloween safer and more fun.

Illinois Bell proposes to expand Antioch call area

Illinois Bell has resubmitted to the Illinois Commerce Commission a proposal to include Waukegan-Gurnee and Zion in an expanded local area for home phone users of Antioch.

The proposal is expected to reduce bills for most residential customers in Antioch.

The modifications to Illinois Bell's rate restructuring plan that took effect in March were first proposed in June. However, in July the modifications were withdrawn when the ICC asked that they be reviewed with a coalition of public interest groups which had endorsed the March rate restructuring.

Since the withdrawal, representatives of the phone company have reviewed the modifications with public interest groups, responded to these groups' requests for data on calling habits and impact on bills and asked for their support.

"We believe the modifications proposed in June were responsive to needs of residence customers in outlying areas of metropolitan Chicago and would result in more equitable local calling areas," said Fred K. Konrad, Illinois Bell assistant vice president for regulatory affairs.

"However, in order to satisfy the ICC's concerns, over the past several weeks we have met and discussed the proposal with a cross-section of consumer and governmental groups. We are confident that these groups see our modifications as beneficial to residence customers and that the ICC will concur."

Illinois Bell is asking the ICC to act on its proposal made on Oct. 1.

The pay-for-what-you-use rate plan in northeastern Illinois allows residential customers to call within local areas and talk as long as they like for no message unit—about a nickel a call.

All calls outside the customer's local area are billed according to when the call is placed, the distance of the call and how long the caller talks.

Under the plan implemented in March, local area calls are those placed to locations served by the caller's switching center or any other switching center within eight miles.

"The greater distances between our switching centers beyond the Chicago metropolitan area have created some cases in which neighboring communities are in different local calling areas," Konrad said.

For example, the switching center serving Antioch is more than eight miles from the Waukegan and Zion switching centers, but the service area for the Antioch center borders theirs.

Illinois Bell is proposing that a customer's local calling area include any community whose switching center serves an area bordering the area served by the customer's switching center.

The plan implemented in March replaced prepaid flat rate local service charges with rates based on the calls each customer actually makes. Customers receive discounts of 33 percent on calls made between 9 p.m. and 8 a.m. and volume discounts of up to 33 percent for residence customers and up to 23 percent for business customers.

Charges for intercity calls to communities more than 15 miles away have been reduced by as much as 65 percent.

Under the new rates, about 60 percent of Illinois Bell's residence customers in northeastern Illinois have experienced decreases in their phone bills. "The impact on individual bills depends entirely on a

The company changed its rate structure so all callers in northeastern Illinois will pay the same price for calls of comparable distance and duration.

Credit card bill change gets nod from Geo-Karis

State Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion) said she will support the changes Gov. James Thompson has made to legislation she co-sponsored that would help consumers find the best credit card rates and fees.

The measure, SB 400, requires credit card issuing banks and businesses in Illinois to file information concerning their interest rates, fees and charges with the state.

Sen. Geo-Karis explained that the legislation was signed with recommendations for change. "Because the Governor changed the legislation, with an amendatory veto, the measure will now go back to the General Assembly for final approval of the Governor's action. When the measure comes back up again for a vote, I intend to support the Governor's recommendations, which seems very reasonable."

The Governor changed the bill to now require the Commissioner of Banks and Trust Companies to serve as the clearing house for the required information on credit card rates and fees, instead of the Dept. of Financial Institutions, as was originally proposed.

"The intent of this legislation is to make credit card companies more competitive and more responsive to consumer demands, and the Governor's action doesn't change that," said Geo-Karis. "By requiring companies to file information about their rates in a central location, it will be easier for consumers to obtain that information. Once consumers have the information, they can shop around for the most favorable rates."

Geo-Karis added that contracts and billing statements from credit card companies would be required to list the address where customers can obtain information from the Commissioner of Banks and Trust Companies.

"There has been some discussion of the state placing a cap on credit card interest rates. I feel that such a move would have a negative effect on this state's business climate," said Sen. Geo-

Karis. "Banks and other credit card companies could stop offering credit to Illinois customers. There could even be a loss of jobs if those businesses decide to stop operations in Illinois."

This bill would help to solve the problem of high interest rates, without risking the Illinois business climate and without risking the opportunity to the consumer to obtain a credit card."

Maintain heating system to prevent a cold ride

With the cold winter months ahead, now is the time to make sure the car heater is working properly.

A car's heating system is much like the engine cooling system. In addition to the duct work, the basic elements of any car heating system are: the heater core, which in essence is a miniature radiator; and two hoses, one of which transports hot coolant to the heater core in the passenger compartment, while the second hose returns this coolant to the engine.

To help familiarize drivers with some possible heating system problems, the Gates Rubber Co. has developed this troubleshooting guide.

When the car heat is not producing enough heat, any of the following may be the cause.

1. The flow of air under the dash may be blocked.
2. Coolant level in the radiator may be low.
3. Heater hoses may be leaking. If a leak is the problem, the hose must be replaced.

4. Hoses may be bent or kinked, thereby restricting the flow of coolant.

5. If the car's heater hoses have recently been removed, they may not have been properly reconnected.

6. Air may be trapped in the system. This also would restrict the coolant. The solution to this is to bleed the system.

7. The blower motor may not be properly working. This could be caused by a blown fuse, a faulty blower resistor, a bad blower motor switch, a loose connection or a burned-out motor.

8. The cooling system thermostat may be stuck in the open position. When this happens, the coolant will not heat up properly. And if the coolant is too cold, heat output will be insufficient. The thermostat should be removed, tested, and replaced if necessary.

9. Doors to the heater assembly may be stuck.

10. Heater core may be clogged. If this is the case, the core should be removed from the car and cleaned out. If the problem still exists, the heater core should be replaced.

11. Water pump belt may be worn and need replacing. If the pump belt has become loose due to wear, it will not drive the water pump efficiently. This, in turn, means that the cooling system will not operate efficiently.

It's a good idea to have the car's heating system checked out as part of the "winterizing" which should be performed before cold weather hits. Conscientious preventive maintenance can help avoid heating problems which always seem to occur at the most inconvenient times.

Doctor dispels suicide myths, offers new clues

In the United States 28,000 to 30,000 recognizable suicides occur annually. "Recognizable" because probably twice as many or more happen and go undetected. Just using the smaller figure means one every 20 minutes.

According to "Mayo Clinical Proceedings," "Patient Care," and other sources 500,000 attempts were made in each of the last few years. The person does not have sufficient grounds for suicide but still does so." There is no reason to believe that it should have been obvious. Apparently any person may commit suicide for reasons that wouldn't be cause for us or are "unfathomable" since they are living a satisfactory life. This is worth noting to console family members who suffer guilt.

"Doctors asking people if they are considering suicide puts the idea in their mind." Also an unfounded myth. Those who aren't suicidal think its routine. Those who thought about it are ahead of the questioner. The firmly committed ones are even further ahead, don't mind or are even grateful to discuss their problems. In fact if they have such thoughts, experts say, it's best someone finds out in a kindly manner so that help may be given.

It becomes obvious that prevention depends on picking up clues. We are talking depression; it has many faces yet a family resemblance at different ages. Highest risk is the older white man alone. He is separated, divorced, widowed, unemployed or in poor health.

Mentally ill, such as the clinically depressed, make up one third to two thirds of suicides. Next most susceptible are alcoholics at 25 percent. The numbers for adolescents and young (aged 15 to 24) tripled in the last three decades but seem to be reaching stability. They tug at our emotions the most.

Strangely susceptible are hospitalized patients who are "accident victims," or hostile, unsatisfied, belligerent and complaining. Some accidents are apparently unproven suicide attempts. The unpleasant patient turns people off and he may unwittingly court disaster that way.

Surprisingly, 60 to 70 percent of suicidal patients have visited a doctor in the last eight months and some as close as three weeks before. The patients, by our culture, doesn't want to admit his problem. Or the depression and his turmoil may manifest itself in body symptoms or in nervousness. He instead complains of sleeplessness, fatigue, decreased energy, apathy, abdominal symptoms or backache.

In my practice, constipation seemed to ring a bell! In short, he doesn't come often with a complaint of depression bordering on suicide. For this reason the patient may fall through the cracks of diagnosis and treatment may go awry.

MUSINGS. This column is not intended to train the reader in psychiatry. There are some clues, though, that should alert family members: Statements that life isn't worth living, wishes for death, crying spells, feeling hopeless. Behavioral changes include: getting affairs in order, giving away possessions, failing grades, drug or alcohol abuse, risk taking, repeated "accidents." Parents should watch for any of the above and also for truancy, running away, reckless driving, school failure and disruptive behavior.

We will never prevent all suicides. But our batting average must be better. Family, friends, teachers must be educated. Even doctors must be more sensitive. They must look at new patients to question why they really came. They must consider that patients known for years may now have entered the high risk group. We have new medicines that help; they are useless if the suicidal person is undetected. In extreme cases hospitalization may be indicated. People are worth it.

Medical usings

By Leo Tannenbaum, M.D.

media had brought attention to this pressing problem. The nationwide attention to suicide by the young, sometimes in pacts, which appeared in rapid sequence suggested almost a copycat emotionalism. It claimed our sympathy and brought forth group therapy by some school authorities.

There are myths about suicide that we must first dispel. These are:

"Suicidal individuals are determined, so even if stopped they'll go off and do it anyway." Not so; the vast majority are asking for help. A corollary to this is that the intent may be a temporary response to a stressful situation that passes over.

"All suicidal individuals are obviously depressed or mentally ill." Actually many hide it quite well. Also there are cultures or even individuals who consider it a normal response to disgrace.

"People who talk about it or threaten suicide don't do it." Actually 80 percent give conversational or behavioral warnings. They must be believed.

"There is something obvious when a

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Antioch

T. S. Boogies, owned by Jeff Blum of Lindenhurst, a trendy new restaurant on Rte. 83, just south of Rte. 173, in Antioch, will open sometime next month. Presently, the remodeling of what used to be an accountant's office, is being done according to the plan of the architect that designed Ed Debevic's, a well-known Chicago restaurant.

Vernon Hills

Dunkin' Donuts has opened its 114th Chicagoland location at the corner of Hwy. 60 and Milwaukee Ave. in Vernon Hills, across from Hawthorn Mall. The shop in Vernon Hills is a new concept for Dunkin' Donuts, with the typical counter seating eliminated to allow for remote seating booths. In addition, an expanded take-out counter will allow for faster service. The new Vernon Hills Dunkin' Donuts is independently operated by John Welsh, who has six years' operating experience with McDonald's. Welsh graduated from the Dunkin' Donuts University near Boston, where he completed, among other courses, a full sanitation program sponsored by the NIFI organization.

Wauconda

Brian Properties has announced that four businesses have leased space in its new multipurpose store building on Rte. 176, across the street from Wauconda National Bank. The tenants will be: Prestige Cleaners, Wauconda Currency Exchange, Soft Serve Yogurt and Bel Rae Building Maintenance Offices.

Lake Zurich

The village has issued liquor licenses to the D and J Bistro Restaurant, in the former Red Fern Inn in the First National Bank Plaza at Rtes. 12 and 22, and the Hillcrest Restaurant, located on the northwest corner of the same intersection in the old American Table Restaurant. The former establishment is expected to open on Oct. 8. The latter should be in business in late October.

Gurnee

The familiar "E" chart used for testing visual acuity for over a century may be on its way out of the doctor's office. A new test has been developed which determines quality of vision rather than quantity, and is currently used by more than 3,500 doctors worldwide. Dr. Walter I. Fried, a Gurnee ophthalmologist, is distributing a free home screening version of the test to Lake County residents through local drug stores.

Round Lake

Builder Al Hepner has begun work in Round Lake building 24 upscale homes on minimum one-acre lots. The homes are all off of Nippersink Rd. in the west end of the village and are designed as a move-up area for people who want a better home.

Grams Crosses
The Tracks In Antique Autos

by KAREN WILTBERGER

Greg Grams will be the first to tell you that he was raised on the wrong side of the tracks, that he never applied for a job and never worked for anybody in his life.

It was his love for old broken down cars that turned into his first and only profession of antique auto sales. At 37, the owner of the Volo Antique Auto Museum is one of the most reputable collector car dealers in the world.

Grams keeps a changing stock of 100 to 125 cars at the museum grounds at 27640 W. Hwy. 120 (just west of Rte. 12) in Volo. Antique cars older than 1948 flood the antique museum, but not far off you can find mint condition 50's cars, muscle cars, sports cars, classy cars and exotic cars.

Amongst the collection is Adolf Hitler's mistress Eva Braun's 540K Mercedes (valued at $500,000), Muhammad Ali's 1962 Mercedes decorated with jewels and gold (valued at $1 million) and Elvis Presley's 1967 stretch limosine (a mere $28,000). You will also find cars that were owned by Howard Hughes, Lucky Luciano and Ruth Buzze.

After 23 years of collecting antique cars, Grams has the nation's largest antique car collection under one roof. Buyers throughout the world have turned to him for collectable cars—a 1932 Auburn Speedster went to Switzerland, a 1938 Alvis to Brazil and a 1911 Ford to England.

Grams is by no means flashy. He can be found wearing jeans, a plain sweater and wornout shoes. It's not uncommon for people to ask him where Greg Grams can be found.

"I was brought up on the other side of the tracks with no money and I don't have to impress anybody," said Grams.

Grams and his brother, Bill, grew up on an old farm (same location of the museum) where the family sold

State unemployment posts positive balance

Following a deep recession which hit Illinois unemployment insurance system hard, the system's cash balance has rebounded in the last four years, Comptroller Roland W. Burris reported.

In his monthly look at Illinois' fiscal status, Burris noted that the unemployment insurance system posted a cash balance of $713.2 million against a debt of $583.6 million, the first time in 12 years the balance has exceeded the system's debt.

Elsewhere in his report, Burris said Illinois' per capita income, though growing slower than the national average from 1979 through 1986, still remains the highest of the Great Lakes states.

Regarding unemployment insurance, Burris credited the state's improved economy and the 1983 solvency package for the resurgence in the system's balance.

During the nationwide recession of 1982 and 1983, Illinois' unemployment insurance system was faced with increased disbursements to unemployed workers. The regular average weekly benefit payment increased from $95 in fiscal 1979 to $153 in fiscal 1983, an increase of 61.1 percent.

During that same period, prices as measured by the Consumer Price Index increased 53 percent. By fiscal 1987, average weekly benefits were $9 (5.9 percent) lower than in 1984.

In fiscal 1976 the system for the first time borrowed from the federal government and by the end of fiscal 1983 the debt totalled $2.392 billion. However, during fiscal 1986 the $890 million in interest bearing debt was retired, and by June 1987 the non-interest bearing debt had been reduced to $584 million.

Thus, from June, 1983 until this year, the unemployment insurance debt was reduced by $1.808 billion, or 75.6 percent.

At its lowest point in fiscal 1983, the state, with the help of both business and labor, enacted a solvency package designed to restore the fiscal integrity of the unemployment insurance program in Illinois. The package, which raised taxes but reduced benefits, is credited with bringing the unemployment insurance system in Illinois back to its feet.

The solvency package is scheduled to expire at the end of 1987. Burris said it will probably be necessary for the General Assembly to hammer out a new package which justly rewards business and labor for their cooperative rescue of the system.

However, Burris warned that a new package must also allow the system to accumulate sufficient reserves to offset any future recession.

Illinois remains the highest per capita income state in the Great Lakes region, although it has grown more slowly than the national average. Illinois currently ranks ninth in the nation in per capita income with $15,586 in 1986, $945 (6.5 percent) above the national average of $14,641.

100 to lose jobs in Streeter consolidation

by CHARLES JOHNSTON

About 100 people will lose their jobs when the Streeter Richardson Div., Mangood Corp., moves most of its manufacturing operations from its Grayslake plant to its Clifton, New Jersey facility.

Mangood is a producer of static scales, traffic counting and classification systems and complex weighing systems.

In 1979, Illinois per capita personal income of $10,090 was $1,057 (11.7 percent) higher than the national average of $9,033.

Great Lakes per capita income grew more slowly than the rate of inflation between 1979 and 1984 but has grown faster than the inflation rate the last two years. Between 1979 and 1984, the price level increased just 38.3 percent and Illinois income increased 39.4 percent.

During the last two years, the rate of inflation was 3.6 percent in 1985 and 1.9 percent in 1986. At the same time, Great Lakes per capita income increased 5.8 percent and 5.4 percent, while Illinois personal income increased 5.2 percent and 5.4 percent.

The drop in performance among Great Lakes states reflects its industrial nature with an emphasis on heavy manufacturing and agriculture, both of which have been battered by foreign competition.

There are signs that Great Lakes states are attempting to shed their heavy industrial images and to work toward attracting alternative businesses and industries.

Company spokesman J.L. Westermann was reluctant to discuss details of how the company will help cushion the blow for its employees. He said that, on an individual and group basis, the company is doing all it can.

"We are contacting local companies, the Grayslake Development Corp., and the Lake County unemployment office," Westermann said. "We are also offering outplacement counseling."

furniture. It was there where the brothers started tinkering with Ford Model A and Model T junks. Grams was only 10 when he got a $30 Model T running, painted it and drove it down the backroads.

"My brother and I always had a liking for antique cars. People thought we were lunatics because we bought junk cars or anything you could buy for $100 to $200.

"We never bought them for the investments either, which is something you could never do over again," said Grams.

The brothers kept the used furniture business going after their father died in 1974. On the side, they collected antique cars.

A few years later they opened an antique auto museum which became a tourist attraction with its own shops, a restaurant, a pet farm and the furniture store.

"Then we started taking chances. My first big car I purchased cost $75,000. I took a really big chance and I ended up selling it for $125,000. I took that money and took more chances...from there, it started snowballing," said Grams.

Though the museum is still open to the public, the brothers don't spend much time promoting it. The restaurant and pet farm have disappeared. Tours have slowed down. Grams chooses now to focus on auto sales. Bill runs the furniture business which carries country, antique as well as contemporary furniture.

From a single auto sale, Grams has made as much as $75,000 and has lost as much as $25,000. He laughs at his mistakes because he is confident his other gambles will pay off.

"If I want to make a big profit, it's a gamble. If I go for a sure thing, it's a small profit. And I've always gambled with cars," said Grams. Profits can range from $500 to $50,000 plus, he said.

Grams said the trend now is to buy cars from the '50s and '60s, muscle cars and specialty cars from the '70s, including convertibles, convertibles and ferarries. Because the average buyer is about 40 years old, Grams said older car sales have slowed down somewhat in the last five years or so. "The guys that drove the older cars are slowing down. Except for the very rare cars the common Model T and Model A aren't appreciated as much," he said.

Grams said he caters to the average person with many of his cars selling for $3,000 to $10,000, less than the price of brand new cars. Grams claims that while new cars depreciate 20 percent a year, older cars appreciate 20 percent a year. "I get guys year after year who buy a car, sell it for a profit and buy another one," said Grams.

Grams has no sales people on the floor and there are no commissions or bargaining games. "The cars sell themselves, I'm not a salesman myself," said Grams, adding that "I have the reputation here. I don't go out looking for cars, they come to me."

Trends can be tricky so it is important for Grams to keep up on the antique auto market. The sudden popularity of the 1959 Cadillac, for example, has shot up price tags to as much as $60,000.

Grams himself owns a 1984 Mercedes 500 SEC and a 1983 red ferarri 308 GTS (though this may change at any time.)

"All that I used to drive is old cars. I never drove to work in my life and I never had a boss. As a matter of fact I've lived in the same house since I was 11 years old. I've never even moved," he said.

Illinois Bell to distribute refunds

About one of every two Illinois Bell customers will see a one-time $1.37 credit on their October telephone bills.

The credits, totaling $2.25 million, are part of a 1986 out-of-court settlement that ended a lawsuit challenging the manner in which customers were enrolled in Illinois Bell's inside wire maintenance plan. Customers will receive the credit if they paid for inside wire maintenance after Aug. 16, 1982 without requesting the service and if they did not choose earlier settlement options. This part of the settlement will affect about 1.6 million of the company's 3.6 million customers.

The credit will be listed as the "inside wire maintenance residual fund" on the page of the telephone bill that lists other charges and credits. The monthly inside wire maintenance plan will continue uninterrupted.

One of the earlier settlement choices included discounts of up to $20 when customers choose to upgrade telephone service with Touch-Tone, Line-Backer or Custom Calling features. Under the second option, eligible customers received a one-time refund of $5.29 and their monthly wire maintenance service was discontinued.

Under the monthly inside wire maintenance plan, Illinois Bell repairs and maintains telephone wiring inside customers' premises without an additional charge per visit. The monthly charge is 39 cents for residence customers and 44 cents for small business customers.

Illinois Bell began offering this service in 1982, following an Illinois Commerce Commission allowing Illinois Bell customers the option of installing their own inside wiring. The cost of maintaining inside wire was included in overall service rates as part of the monthly phone bill.

Two class action suits were filed late in 1982 challenging the method by which the company introduced the plan. Telephone customers had been notified through several messages in their bills that their inside wire maintenance would continue under the company's new plan.

The class action suits contended that the monthly wire maintenance charge should not have been automatic. The effect, they argued, was to force some consumers into inadvertent contracts for service which they did not necessarily want.

In May 1983, the Circuit Court of Cook County ruled against Illinois Bell. The company appealed the decision, but agreed in 1986 to an out-of-court settlement.

"We worked years for our money, now we're making our money work for us."

"We sold our old home and bought our beautiful new manor home on a tax-free exchange. Then we invested the balance also tax-free. It was the smartest move we ever made, especially since 1987's tax reform left mortgage interest as the last major tax deduction.

But smartest of all is our big new 3 bedroom home with vaulted ceiling, fully applianced kitchen, laundry room, patio, and huge master suite. Plus, maintenance-free living gives us plenty of time to enjoy the swimming pool, clubhouse, and friendly peacefulness of this established community."

Homeowners can fill 'gaps' in insurance and save money

by GARY S. MEYERS

If your insurance agent says "trust me" when he sells you homeowner's coverage—beware. Your so-called "comprehensive" insurance coverage may have a number of serious gaps in it. It can cost money to plug these gaps, but it is possible to get around many of the exclusions and limitations in standard insurance contracts.

Standard coverage consists of the so-called "HO-3" policy, which combines protection against both property loss and personal liability. The HO-3 policy covers 18 perils, including loss by fire, smoke or lightning, windstorm or hail, explosion, aircraft, vehicles, vandalism, theft and glass breakage. It also covers ice and snow damage, accidental water or steam leaks, frozen plumbing and accidental injury from electrical appliances and wiring.

Despite this impressive list, there are many gaps.

When loss of personal property is involved, most insurance companies will pay only the actual cash value for the damage or destruction of personal property. That means you'll receive the replacement cost of the item minus depreciation. So the owner who loses a $600 tv may receive only $300 or $400.

Robert Schultz, president of the Illinois Insurance Information Service, says that his organization recommends that homeowners pay extra for "replacement cost" coverage. This means that if you have a loss, the insurance company will pay whatever it costs to buy the item new. Replacement cost coverage will boost your premium by 10 to 15 percent.

Although many homeowners assume their standard insurance policy covers theft of all personal property, there are dollar limits on many specific items. For instance, in the standard comprehensive contract, coverage bank notes and gold and silver bullion is usually limited to $200. Coverage on theft of jewelry, furs and precious and semiprecious stones is often limited to $1,000.

Many policies often place a $1,000 limit on the loss of securities, deeds, passports and stamps; a $2,500 limit for the loss of silverware, goldware and pewter; and $2,000 for the theft of firearms.

However, for an additional fee, endorsements to the policy can be set up to increase the coverage for specific items. The fee is usually about $25 per item.

With most policies, you are covered up to $25,000 for liability. By most accounts this is insufficient. Robert Hunter, an actuary and president of the non-profit National Insurance Consumer Organization, based in Alexandria, Va., recommends that you either increase your liability to $300,000, which would add $25 to $50 to your premium, or get an umbrella $1,000,000 liability policy for both your home and auto, which would add about $100 per year.

Most insurance companies require homeowners to insure their houses for at least 80 percent of their replacement value; if you are insured for less, you may get paid proportionately less on small losses. For example, if you have a $100,000 house insured for $80,000, the insurance company will pay the full amount on small claims. But if you are insured for, say, only $60,000, some companies will pay only three-quarters.

Although it may increase your annual insurance premium, Hunter's organization urges homeowners to buy coverage equal to the cost of replacing the house in today's market. And this "100 percent replacement coverage" should be kept current. Even if you purchased full replacement coverage when you bought your house seven years ago, by now it may have fallen below even the 80 percent safety mark.

Many insurance companies offer a "deluxe" policy called an HO-5. This really is just an HO-3 policy with higher amount of coverage for personal property. It is generally more cost-efficient to expand the coverage of your HO-3 policy with riders for specific items rather than to purchase a prestige policy.

While it is important to make sure that you are adequately covered—and this may cost more than you expected—there are some cost-saving steps you can take. Robert Hunter recommends that you take a higher deductible from $100 to $500, you'll save about 30 percent on your premium; increasing it to $1,000 will save you about 45 percent.

"For every dollar you give an insurance company, you'll get 50 cents back if you're average risk," said Hunter. "I took the highest deductible I could ($1,000) and put the amount I saved on the premium in the bank."

In addition to the other deficiencies, an HO-3 policy does not cover disasters such as flood, earthquake, war and nuclear accidents, said Bob Schultz.

DOCTORS FORUM

By Dr. Chris Bowman

Today's article deals with two commonly encountered first aid problems, burns and exposure to extreme cold.

Burns are divided into three categories based on the severity of the burn. A burn with redness and minor swelling is classified as a first degree burn. Second degree burns will involve redness and blistering along with a wet look to the skin. If the skin turns white or is charred and there is a loss of sensation usually indicates a third degree burn. First aid for first and second degree burns is similar. Apply a cold compress or immerse the burnt area in cold water until the pain subsides. After the pain subsides, gently dry the area. These measures should reduce the redness, swelling, and relieve the discomfort. You should follow-up with your family physician for second degree burns because of blister peeling and possibility of infection. Third degree burns are severe. First aid for third degree burns consists of calling your local rescue squad and keeping the person flat and warm until the rescue squad arrives for transportation to the nearest emergency room.

Extreme exposure to the cold can result in hypothermia (low body temperature). The danger signs of hypothermia are persistent or violent shivering, slow or slurred speech, a loss of control of the hands and stumbling or drowsiness. Any of these signs require an immediate visit to the nearest hospital emergency room. For moderate cold exposure, first get the person to a warm place and then remove any constrictive clothing to increase blood flow to the extremities. After removing any constrictive clothing, place the person in a bed with warm coverings. Warm sweet drinks or soup should be given to warm the person.

Besides hypothermia, body tissue damage known as frostbite is another major concern in cold exposure. Frostbite usually occurs on the hands, feet, and the tip of the nose. Skin that is frostbitten will turn white or grayish-yellow, and will have a glossy look to it. The skin will also be cold and numb. A frostbitten area should be immersed in warm, not hot, water. If water is not available, gently wrap the frostbitten area and the person in warm blankets. Avoid rubbing the frozen area, as this may produce further damage. Always follow-up with your family physician if frostbite is suspected.

The Doctors Forum is brought to you as a public service from the Heritage Medical Center in Antioch, Illinois. For more information call (312) 395-0085.

Alternate bubbles burst onto scene as designated drivers' drink debuts

by GLORIA DAVIS

The conscientious bartender eyed his customer suspiciously. Even though he had been very busy, and despite the customer's staid demeanor, he remembered serving this particular person quite a few drinks.

"Another drink, sure you haven't had enough? Oops, excuse me," the bartender mumbled red-faced as he reached for another bottle of Delta D.

Delta D is Gene Stilling of Barrington's bubbling new alternative to alcohol.

Weekend is party time for many Lakeland residents and the biggest partytime of the year, the holidays, is fast approaching. Party time means a lot of socializing, and usually much imbibing of both eat and drink.

For those of us that have been known to "tip a few" now and then, today's stricter drinking-driving laws have us more conscious than ever before of the amount of alcohol we consume before we climb behind the wheel.

Sure, every year before Thanksgiving and Christmas, the media is filled with warnings about drinking too much and driving. The food sections of the newspapers blossom with pictures and recipes for delicious-looking, non-alcoholic festive drinks and some tv stations include information on the "12 (non-alcoholic) Drinks of Christmas" during the Channel breaks.

But let's face it, most bartenders are less than thrilled with making such concoctions and most of them are calorie filled, replacing one's thirst for alcohol with sweet or creamy liquids.

And there are those that feel like members of Alcoholic Anonymous when they sip Seven-Up or settle for Coke on the rocks all night.

Basically, it's probably not that most Americans would drink too much, its the fact that we (freedom minded as we are) are being told we can't, that makes the yen for that one more drink just a little stronger for some of us.

Unlike some third world countries, U. S. law enforcement authorities do not march drinking drivers in front of the firing squad. And the first DUI conviction does not mean the disappearance of one's driver's license forever like in Japan.

But these days, anyone caught blowing (in the breathalyzer) more than a .10, is still in big trouble, both monetarily and legally.

Conscious of all this, Stilling and his vice president Fred Pira have introduced to the Lakeland area, a full-bodied, sparkling alternative to alcohol that is not another non-thirst quenching, sickeningly sweet pop or non-satisfying tasteless tonic water.

Delta D comes in eight lightly car- (Continued on Page 8)

Fall Diddley craft show set for McHenry County

On Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 17 and 18, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, the McHenry County Fairgrounds will be the location of the second annual "Fall Diddley," a craft show sponsored by the Mental Health Resource League for McHenry County. Last year, over 15,000 people visited this fall festival.

Mundelein resident Collette Kocinski has been selected to be among the 200 artists and crafters showing their work at Fall Diddley.

Returning for her second year as a Fall Diddley exhibitor, Kocinski will be showing her patchwork vests and jackets.

Lake Villa resident John Vance has also been selected to exhibit. Returning for his second year as a Fall Diddley exhibitor, Vance will again be showing his woodcrafts for the bathroom and kitchen.

Kenosha resident Monne Haug is among the 200 artists and crafters who will show their work. Haug will be exhibiting hand-crafter sculptures and masks.

Three Gurnee residents have been selected. Local crafter Ina Krecking will be displaying her stenciled shopping bags. Returning for their second year, exhibitors Kathy Schaefer will show her decoupage plaques and magnets, and Joan Steffens will exhibit her dough art.

Grayslake resident Eugene Malin will be there for the second year. Malin will be exhibiting his hand done water-fowl carvings.

"Fall Diddley's" 200 artists and crafters are located in seven buildings throughout the fairgrounds. Craft enthusiasts will find a wide variety of items including country crafts, folk art, wood work, pottery, and holiday decorations.

While parents browse through the intriguing displays of arts and crafts, children will be entertained by a wide variety of activities especially for them, including rides, painted faces, games, a rug slide, and a "decorate your pumpkin" patch.

Entertainment throughout the day, including clowns, jugglers, square dancers, and jazz musicians will keep the fairgoers in a festive mood.

The fairgrounds will be decorated in a harvest and Halloween theme complete with pumpkins, hay bales, corn stalks, scarecrows and ghosts.

There will also be plenty of food for hungry shoppers: hot dogs and brats, candy apples and cider, pies and other baked goods, nachos, baked potatoes, pizza, and hot pretzels.

The McHenry County Fairgrounds are located at the junction of Rte. 47 and Country Club Rd. in Woodstock, one mile south of Rte. 120 and one mile north of Rte. 14.

Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children, and children under five free. The proceeds from "Fall Diddley" benefit McHenry County agencies concerned with the care and treatment of the developmentally disabled and mentally ill.

Players will hold auditions

Waukegan Community Players announces auditions for their holiday presentation of "Scrooge!" The musical version of the Dickens classic will be directed by Norma Cribb. This is a large cast combining the talents of young people through senior citizens.

On Sunday, Oct. 11, a workshop will be conducted from 2 to 4 p.m. by the musical director, Jeff Johnson. All interested persons should attend at the Rosenwald Cottage, Bowen Park, Waukegan.

Children ages six and up will be auditioned beginning at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 18.

On Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 19 and 20, auditions for adults will begin at 7 p.m.

All auditions will be held at Rosenwald Cottage, Bowen Park, on Sheridan Rd. in Waukegan.

Anyone who cannot make the auditions on Monday and Tuesday can attend the Sunday audition. Performances will be in early December at the Genesee Theater.

Quintet set to perform

The Asbury Brass Quintet, a well-respected chamber music ensemble, will perform at the College of Lake County on Saturday, Oct. 24 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium.

Admission is $6 for the general public and $3 for CLC students, staff, and alumni. Tickets are available at the box of-

Republicans to receive 'Anniversary Salute'

The Lake County Republican Federation will receive a "Silver Anniversary Salute" Oct. 9 at a cocktail-reception at the Sheraton-Waukegan Inn, 200 N. Greenbay Rd., Waukegan.

The cocktail party, set for 5:30 to 8 p.m., will enable local Republicans to meet with officeholders and "have a real good time" said Federation President

Ned L. Fisher of Waukegan.

Tickets at $25 and sponsor tickets for $100 are available at Republican Headquarters, 128 N. Genesee St. in Waukegan.

The founder and first president of the Federation in 1962 was Robert D. Stuart, Jr., now U.S. Ambassador to Norway. Stuart's objectives, Fisher said, were to provide a fundraising arm for the Republican Party in Lake County, assist the GOP Central Committee by establishing a fulltime headquarters, provide political information to the public, coordinate volunteer work and act as a clearing house for activities of Republican clubs, candidates and officials.

Stuart initiated the $100 a plate annual dinner show (now $175) as the Federation's major fundraising activity. Among speakers at the Federation dinners have been Clare Boothe Luce, former U.S. Representative and former Ambassador to Italy; former U.S. Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee, now White House Chief of Staff, and some current presidential candidates: U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp of New York; U.S. Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas; and former Gov. Pierre duPont.

Suzie Metzler, Federation executive secretary, said all the Federation past presidents are giving heavy support to the cocktail party. In addition to Stuart they are Gordon H. Smith, Mrs. Augustin S. Hart, Jr., Michael Cudahy and William E. Brook.

Operation Safe Kids Oct. 15

Operation Safe Kids is to be presented by the Lake County Cooperative Extension on Oct. 15 at 4 p.m.

During the elementary school year, children increasingly are away from adult supervision while walking to and from school, while playing in the park, while their parents work. Children on their own need to know basic safety skills and to feel confident and secure while they test their wings.

Wit this in mind, the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension for Service recently introduced the operation Safe Kids Program in local school and club groups.

Operation Safe Kids focuses on teaching personal safety and self care skills. Lake County Extension Advisers Irene Green and Norma Schott will explain what some of these important skills are and how parents can help their youngsters develop them on Oct. 15 in the Cooperative Extension Auditorium located on Rte. 45, school blocks north of Rte. 120 in Grayslake.

For more information, or to enroll, call (312) 223-8627.

Victory out of bidding for St. Therese for now

Victory Memorial Hospital is out of the bidding to acquire St. Therese. Victory had been negotiating as part of a joint venture with Evangelical Health Systems (EHS) to make the acquisition.

Nora O'Malley, president and chief executive officer of St. Therese, said she had requested that Victory and EHS extend the Sept. 30 deadline on their offer. Though EHS agreed to provide additional time, Victory notified her that it was withdrawing.

According to Victory spokesman Warren Lyons, negotiations broke down because Victory believed its concerns were being ignored by EHS during the negotiating process. The new health care entity would have required the gift of Victory and its related corporations to EHS as a condition of the purchase. Also, according to Victory, EHS sent bid modifications to St. Therese without the approval of the Victory governing board.

O'Malley said St. Therese needed the extension to allow time for ecclesiastical review and approval of the sale by Joseph Cardinal Bernardin and by the Holy See in Rome.

The 396-bed St. Therese Medical Center has been owned and operated by the Missionary Sisters Servants of the Holy Spirit, a religious order of women based in Techny, since its opening in 1929. Canon law requires ecclesiastical authorization for the property sale.

"We are disappointed by their (Victory's) decision," O'Malley said. "The combination of these two fine institutions under a single regional management could have been the best thing for the community because it would have created a medical center with the operating efficiencies and financial resources capable of meeting the current and long-term future needs of all the people of northern Lake County."

John Clennon, chairman of the board at Victory, said, "One of the primary concerns of Victory during the entire negotiation process was that local community control and influence over the destiny of the Waukegan health care delivery system be maintained. During the course of the negotiations, it became increasingly apparent that this objective could not be met."

Clennon added that Victory is "still committed to any reasonable transaction where the community can benefit from the cost-efficiency of a combined health care delivery system in the greater Waukegan area."

Allendale to dedicate second halfway house

The Allendale Assn. will dedicate its new group home in Waukegan on Tuesday, Oct. 20. Gordon Johnson, director of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services, will officiate at the 2 p.m. dedication, with local public officials also in attendance.

The new facility at 421 Water St. will house seven adolescents, doubling Allendale's halfway program. The youths, former residents of Allendale School in Lake Villa, will be able to experience independent living in a real community setting, while under the supervision of Allendale's professional staff.

The Allendale Assn. purchased the eight-room property in June, in recognition for a need for increased halfway house services.

Following dedication ceremonies at the Water St. location, Johnson will proceed to the Lake Villa campus of Allendale, where, at 6 p.m., he will address the agency's annual trustee meeting. New psychologist/social work intern and medical facilities will be dedicated on the campus following the meeting.

The public is invited to attend the Water St. and Lake Villa activities.

Hospitals win appeal for reinstatement of lawsuit

The Illinois Appellate Court has reinstated a lawsuit brought by four area hospitals seeking to halt construction of a teaching hospital at the University of Health Sciences/Chicago Medical School in North Chicago.

The Appellate Court reversed a May 21 decision by Cook County Circuit Judge Albert

Green to dismiss the suit. Green had said the four hospitals—Victory Memorial in Waukegan, Lake Forest Hospital, Condell Memorial Hospital in Libertyville, and Lutheran General in Park Ridge—had filed the lawsuit before the Illinois Health Facilities Planning Board, which granted a permit for the teaching hospital to Humana, Inc. in May, 1986, had completed the administrative appeals process.

The Appellate Court said the hospitals were within legal rights to file a suit during the 35-day appeals period.

The medical school said it needs its own hospital because its faculty has been denied admitting privileges and affiliations with existing hospitals, and that a teaching hospital could offer necessary services to Lake and McHenry County residents, as well as those living between Chicago and Milwaukee.

Area hospitals charge that the proposed teaching hospital would only duplicate the services and add to the number of empty beds at existing area facilities.

Officials of area hospitals say that almost half of hospital beds in Lake, Kane and McHenry Counties are unused.

The Appellate Court did uphold another of Green's rulings which dropped St. Therese Medical Center and Highland Park Hospital from the suit. The decision stated that those two hospitals had become involved in the lawsuit long after the appeal period was over.

Carmel's Rev. Harry to co-chair council

The Rev. William J. Harry, O. Carm., principal of Carmel High School for Boys, has been elected co-chair of Council I of the Archdiocese of Chicago. Council I is composed of Loyola, Marillac, Notre Dame, Regina, St. Scholastica, St. Viator, Resurrection, Woodlands Academy and Carmel high schools.

The purpose of the Council is to maintain contact between the schools and the Education Office of the Archdiocese and to discuss issues of mutual interest and concern.

Recently, the Council completed the development of Catholic high school guidelines on an Archdiocesan level.

Cirriculum issues and development of a study skills program will probably occupy much of the Council's attention during the school year.

According to Father Bill, this "should prove to be an interesting year, because curriculum and study skills programs are two topics we are now looking at here at Carmel. There is, for me, a real value in learning first-hand how these other schools are doing in these areas. It will also be good for us to share what we have done."

Seniors," a talk on "1987 Tax Laws and the Senior," and two "movies for seniors."

The Convention will end at 3 p.m., so as to beat the evening rush hour.

Big Brothers need volunteers

More than 13 million children in the United States are growing up in one-parent families. The patterns of instability and upheaval in family life continue to take their toll. Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Lake County is meeting this challenge by matching children, five through 14 years of age, with responsible adults who are willing to spend three to five hours a week for a minimum of one year with them. Share talents, interests and life experiences with a child from a single-parents home in Lake County. There are 40 children, mostly boys, waiting. Learn more about the program at the Volunteer Orientation meeting on Monday, Oct. 19 at the BB/BS office located at 4213 Grove Ave., Gurnee, from 6 to 8 p.m. For more information, and to make an orientation reservation, please call (312) 360-0770.

Kelly investors settle with trust company

One hundred and fourteen people who invested $600,000 with Woody Kelly, the Antioch investor who disappeared in 1985 and has been accused of bilking people of several states of $6 million, have instituted lawsuits against the Antioch Trust Co., now Northern States Trust, Waukegan, for negligence in connection with the investment made with Kelly of the IRA and pension funds held by the trust company.

A class action suit, filed by 113 of these investors has been settled out of court for $127,000, to be paid to the investors by the trust company.

Don Peterson, Antioch businessman, has filed a separate lawsuit because he signed different documents with the trust company than any of the other investors. Peterson's case is pending in Lake County Civil Court.

The consensus of the class action suit was that the trust company should have taken steps to protect its clients. The trust company contends that the funds invested were in self managed accounts and therefore the investors' responsibility.

Klemm supports landfill bill

Tougher standards for the siting of regional pollution control facilities would be implemented if Senate Bill 749 is signed by Illinois Gov. Jim Thompson, according to State Rep. Dick Klemm (R-Crystal Lake).

Klemm, a faithful and strong supporter of SB 749, expects the Governor to take action on the legislation soon. The bill would improve the process by which counties and municipalities determine whether sanitary landfills or incinerators may be built in their area.

"This bill will alleviate the problems McHenry and Lake counties face when landfill applications are resubmitted after they have been previously denied. This measure will save county boards and local governments the expense of having to reconsider the application again though the substance of the application has changed little," Klemm said. "Developers would be required to wait at least two years before resubmitting the siting application."

Other parts of the measure would force developers to submit sufficient technical specifics of the proposed waste facility at the moment of filing, so local officials would have the information needed to determine if siting criteria had been reached.

Sheriff walking, resting after sudden surgery

by CHARLES JOHNSTON

Rumors have been flying all week that Lake County Sheriff Robert "Mickey" Babcox is seriously ill. Well, reports of Babcox' impending demise are seriously exaggerated.

On Friday, Oct. 2, the sheriff went into the hospital for some tests and a biopsy. While recovering, his esophagus started to drain and doctors believed immediate surgery was in order, according to Chief Deputy Clinton Grinell.

The problem was not completely taken care of during the surgery and doctors decided to close Babcox up once the immediate problem was taken care of.

On Tuesday, Oct. 6, Babcox condition was upgraded in the intensive care unit and by Wednesday, Oct. 7, doctors had him up walking around.

Grinell said that it looks like Babcox will be released on furlough in 10 days to two weeks. During that period he will be given time to build up strength to prepare for the surgery to correct the problem with his esophagus.

For now, it is business as usual at the sheriff's office.

Grinell said, "We are looking forward to having the sheriff back at work, but we are operating just as we would if he was on vacation."

Smart negotiating pays in purchasing homes

by GARY S. MEYERS

Negotiating the purchase of a home may make reaching an arms agreement with the Soviets seem like child's play. While the fate of the world may not be at stake, thousands of dollars and countless potential headaches certainly are.

"Home buying is much more than seller and buyer getting together to quibble about price," said Chicago real estate lawyer Marshall J. Moltz. "Negotiation often becomes a tangled web of counter-offers and contingencies."

The key document in all this is the sales contract for a home. Before signing the sales contract drafted by the broker, meet with a good real estate lawyer. If you do sign before your lawyer can check the contract, simply include a clause that makes the contract "subject to buyer's attorney approval."

Experts say a smart home buyer should ask the seller to warrant that appliances, water, sewer, plumbing, heating and electrical systems are in working order; that the roof and foundation are free of leaks; that the premises are free of termites, carpenter ants and structural defects; and that the home does not have a flooding problem.

"A seller could be liable if he misrepresents the condition of his house in his warranties," said Moltz.

In addition, the purchaser should insist that a contractor, structural engineer or any other inspectors of his choice check the premises within seven days. The purchase contract should allow the buyer to terminate the contract if the inspectors report structural defects.

Recently, house detective J.S. James, president of Chicago-based American Building Inspection Service, conducted a home inspection for a shrewd buyer. Although the building was in sound mechanical and structural condition, the engineer documented $2,600 worth of necessary repairs—everything from roof work and painting to a rotten window sash.

"Although the inspection report cost $250, it helped the buyer negotiate several thousand dollars off the seller's asking price," said James. "Know before you buy," he said, "and go with the reputable inspector."

For information on a home inspector in your area, you can write the American Society of Home Inspectors: 1010 Wisconsin Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Another artful negotiation ploy is hiring a professional property appraiser to estimate the fair market value and replacement cost of the property.

For a $150 fee, an appraisal report often can awaken the seller to the property's actual worth.

In establishing value, appraisers take exterior and interior photos of the home, study floor plan and site maps, and sales of similar buildings in the neighborhood.

"Physical depreciation and functional obsolescence in a home due to poor floor plan and lack of modernization can reduce the estimated market value by as much as 20 percent below comparable properties," said Donald W. Lotton, of Chicago-based Consolidated Appraisal.

If you are buying a home but need the money from your current property to do it, make the transaction contingent upon the sale of the property. If the sale is not consummated, you can terminate the contract without liability.

Many standard sales contracts make the transaction contingent upon the buyer obtaining a mortgage, which is good, but buyers should beware of some aspects of the mortgage contingency clause. Typically, the clause allows the buyer to secure a mortgage within 45 to 60 days. The type of loan, maximum interest rate and points, and other terms are usually spelled out.

If you are unable to obtain financing, most standard contracts say you must notify the seller in writing within a specified time. If you don't, it will be assumed you have a loan commitment, and you could lose your escrow deposit if you do not close the sale. "A purchaser is better protected if any reference requiring written notification of mortgage commitment is deleted from the contract," Moltz said.

There are risks in asking for too much. The seller's attorney may balk at contingency clauses that could stall the sale or lower the seller's return so much that he may refuse the offer. Also, while lawyers are haggling over contingencies, other purchasers may successfully bid on the property, leaving you out in the cold.

That leaves the buyer and his advisers to decide how far to go. But unlike the arms negotiations, mutually verifiable deals can be hammered out in a matter of days or even hours.

Rock Tracks

By Rob Ferrus

Motorhead's new album entitled Rock 'n' Roll includes the title track from the upcoming New Line motion picture release Eat The Rich, as well as a special guest appearance by Monty Python's Michael Palin. As usual (for Motorhead), the LP was created and completed with lightning speed, taking three weeks to write, eleven days to record and ten to mix. "We work better under pressure," explains Wurzel, the band's lead guitarist. Guitarist Phil Campbell points out, "Did you ever listen to a record that's taken eight months to record? All the feeling is gone out of it." Someone ought to buy him a copy of Pink Floyd's The Wall album.

The Eat The Rich movie is scheduled for simultaneous release here and in the U.K. early in October. It was created by The Comic Strip, the people who are responsible for the BBC television series The Young Ones, seen in the United States on MTV.

Temmy, the group's bass player, stars as Spider, a Russian spy and ex-drug dealer. Wurzel, Phil Campbell and Philthy Taylor (drums) have cameo roles along with Paul and Linda McCartney, Angela Bowie, Koo Stark, Bill Wyman, Miles Copeland and Jools Holland. Sounds like a U.K. rock 'n' roll who's who.

For an 11-hour effort, the 13th annual Volunteer Jam was a first-rate success. Highlighting the show was the debut performance of the reformed Lynyrd Skynyrd Band. Charlie Daniels broke precedent this year by revealing that Skynyrd would be on the bill. Traditionally, the roster is kept secret from the public. Observers say the record turnout was due to the tip-off, which caused tickets to be sold out days before the concert. While Skynyrd was clearly the top crowd pleaser of this year's Jam, Stevie Ray Vaughan was not far behind. Currently, The Charlie Daniels Band is touring in support of their recently released album, Powder Keg. ©1987, McNaught Synd.

'Colored Museum' snappy production

by Tom Witom

Many of the barbs launched in George C. Wolfe's satirical play, "The Colored Museum", sailed over the heads of the predominantly white opening-night audience at Chicago's Victory Gardens Theater.

Nevertheless, the all-black cast of five comes up with more zingers than misses in this snappy production which is booked through Nov. 1.

Anyone, regardless of his race, will find a mixture of wit and pathos threaded among the various monologues, songs and dance numbers that make up the various "exhibits" in "The Colored Museum".

In one way or another, all 11 sketches in the revue chip away at cultural stereotypes as the black characters struggle to be free to live in their own "colored contradictions" without denying their heritage.

Rita Warford, as Aunt Ethel, a down-home cook, serves up a quick lesson in "cooking up the American Negro". Terrence Carter provokes a strong response as he flaunts his defensive mask to the world in the character of Miss Roj, the drag queen.

Other scenes show a young Buppie (black urban professional) attempting to shed his roots by trashing his Afro hair conditioner, a dashiki, old Jimi Hendrix albums and an autographed photo of Donna Summer.

One skit, "The Last Mama-on-the-Couch Play", pokes fun at black cliches in the theater. And for a good bellylaugh, there's nothing finer than "The Hairpiece", an exchange between a young woman and her two very vocal wigs.

"Lala's Opening" goes on a bit too long, and "Soldier with a Secret" is too top-heavy, but neither detracts enough to qualify "The Colored Museum's" must-see rating.

Kauai, the Garden Isle, paradise discovered by JIM WARNKEN President North Star Travel Inc.

Geologically, it is the first of the Hawaiian Islands to be created. It is the first to be discovered by "White Men." Captain Cook landed there in 1778. However, Kauai still remains undiscovered by most tourists who instead flock to neighboring Oahu and the hotels of Waikiki Beach.

If it's nightlife you are seeking, join the crowds in Honolulu. If your reasons for visiting Hawaii is to experience the South Seas as you have seen in the movies, Kauai is your island.

In fact, many South Seas movies were filmed here. Remember Nurses Beach from the movie South Pacific? You'll find it here. (It's real name is Lumahai Beach and can be found at mile marker 33 on Rte. 56.) How about that breath taking waterfall shown on "Fantasy Island"? That's Wailua Falls. (Rte. 583 just north of Kapaia will get you there.) Did you ever wish you could stay at the resort which was the setting for Elvis' "Blue Hawaii"? Have your travel agent book you into the Coco Palms on Kauai and your dreams are fulfilled!

Kauai's beaches are not only among the most beautiful in the world, but also the most uncrowded. In fact, Kauai has some beaches only accessible by helicopter! Others can be reached on foot, but only with directions. In fact, it is Kauai's "hidden beaches" that I find to be her most inviting feature. I'll bet you want directions to some of my secret sunning spots. Well, only if you promise not to tell anyone.

First let me tell you about those "No Trespassing" signs you will see on many back roads, some of which you must take to get to public beaches. Officially, these are private "Cane Roads" and are owned by the sugarcane plantations. They are, however, used by local people all the time. As long as you realize you are on private property and drive cautiously, yielding to plantation traffic, you will be permitted to use them. In fact, I found the owners of these plantations to be most helpful in finding these hidden beaches.

OK, try this one. It's known as Larson's Beach and is a public beach, though you'll most likely not find a foot print on it. Take Rte. 56 to Koolau Rd., which is at mile marker 16. Now go two and one-half miles to a cane road on the right. Take this road to the next dirt road and make a left. Follow it about a mile to the end. Park your car and walk through the fence. About a half mile down this path you'll find an endless sandy beach all to yourself! Directions to many other beaches can be obtained at the little deli shops in town who will make a picnic lunch for you to take along.

All of Kauai's beaches are not that hard to find. Many are right off the main road. Kee Beach at the end of Rte. 56 is the best snorkeling beach I have yet to find anywhere.

Kauai's beaches are not her only attractions. Waimea Canyon rivals the Grand Canyon for beauty. It's 2,500 foot walls and many waterfalls are a must to see. The 3,000 foot cliffs of the Na Pali coast with the sea at their feet are the things seen on post cards.

If you haven't guessed already, Kauai is my favorite island. I invite you to come see Hawaii as few tourists ever do.

Haunting house is hard work even for ghouls

by BILL DOTSON

Haunting a house is a simple thing to do, right? All that's needed is a poltergeist or two to stir up trouble along with some creaking doors, cobwebs, bats, and maybe a few monsters. It may appear simple on the surface, but behind the spooky scenes, there's much more to it than a group of kids from an Andy Hardy movie getting together in a barn and saying, "Hey, kids, let's put on a haunted house!"

There are many haunted houses in the Lakeland region this time of year and one of the most enduring of them, the Grass Lake Ghouls Haunted House, sponsored by the Grass Lake PTO, is entering its 13th season. PTO member and past haunted house committee chairman Linda Borman dismissed any superstitions about that number and discussed the process of organizing a haunted house.

"We start by conning someone to be in charge. Then the next thing we do is set a budget. Then we set a meeting where everybody throws out whatever crazy ideas they may have to offer. There are a lot of sick minds connected with this," she laughed.

"About eight to 10 guys do the majority of construction," she continued. "Some of the women do the painting and things like that and then we have electronics experts for the special effects."

Borman gave a basic outline of the actual process of putting together a haunted house, saying that after lining up whatever donations can be found (i.e., plywood, tools, etc.) and passing around ideas, they then start building the basic shell.

"We have cardboard walls to paint, sometimes we do mazes, then we do the electronics work, the wiring, and then the painting. After that, we put in the finishing touches—painting signs, checking costumes and make-up, that sort of thing," Borman said.

"During the process, we have one person lining up monsters. We have one or two pros with make-up. We can't give away any of the specific surprises yet, but I can assure you that Freddy (from the 'Nightmare on Elm Street' movies) will be there again," she said.

Borman said it takes about 25 to 30 people to run the haunted house on the nights when it is open. Besides the monsters, they have parking lot attendants, ticket sellers, etc.

Clearly, there is much hard work that goes into putting together a successful haunted house. This one is located at the Grass Lake School on Grass Lake Rd. and opens Oct. 23.

*Insurance related expenses and deductions from premiums are not reflected. For instance, assuming all premiums were invested in the Capital Growth Series, if an annual premium variable life policy with a face amount of $39,549 had been purchased by a 40 year old male on August 26, 1983, at a standard risk premium of $1,000 per year the death benefit as of 8/31/87 would be $65,223 and the cash value would be $12,422. This example is based on investment performance figures updated from those in the prospectus. The cash value of a variable life policy is not guaranteed. Geneva car rally drew record attendance crowd

With the picture perfect weather of the entire weekend, the 10th Annual Lake Geneva Classic Car Rally was the biggest and best ever.

Over 650 classic, antique and special interest vehicles, a new record, attended the two-day event at Americana Lake Geneva Resort and $16,500 was raised for childhood cancer research, in memory of Corinne Kreissl.

The tour route around Geneva Lake was travelled on Saturday and Sunday and spectators enjoyed the event from many vantage points. The Grand Car Show Finale at noon on Sunday was attended by many spectators, as well as car rally participants.

Prizes and awards were presented at 2 p.m. inside the ski lodge by emcee Betty Bartelson of Lake Geneva. Spiro Condos, Lake Geneva councilman, welcomed all; Dr. Jack Cummings of Whitewater, Wis. and the American Cancer Society expressed appreciation and originators George and Janice Kreissl and their son, Kurt were also there to assist in the presentation.

Winner of the grand prize, a complete weekend package for two at the Americana Lake Geneva Resort, was Joe Argento of Melrose Park, Ill., his third year in attendance.

The second prize, an amethyst stone donated by China West of Lake Geneva, was also won by Joe Argento, the first time ever for a first and second place win.

Third prize, a one-fourth Liberty gold coin from the Citizens National Bank of Lake Geneva, was won by Shirley Coutre of Bloomingdale, Ill., a previous rally first prize winner and participant since the first rally in 1978.

Winners also received trophies donated by First Bank Southeast of Lake Geneva. Dash plaques were also presented to the first 500 cars entered.

Lakeland WEEKEND

Lakeland CINEMA Review With Matthew Poliakon and Bill Dotson

Catch Lakeland's own movie critics as they take a weekly look at what is new at theatres in the area. Your letters are welcome. Send any comments to: Lakeland Cinema c/o Lakeland Newspapers, 30 S. Whitney St., Grayslake, IL 60030.

Matthew

To question or not to question, that's what we'll see

☐ MAYBE

☐ YES
☐ NO
★ ★ ★ ?

How do film critics select those films that they are going to review if they haven't yet seen them? This somewhat circular problem often confronts Bill and me since: 1. We don't like to read other film critics reviews prior to going to a new film. 2. As critics for a weekly newspaper, we don't want to spend our weekends or evenings sitting through 2 plus hours of film-flam that we could have possibly avoided. 3. We both have to sort of agree ahead of time on the film that we are going to be reviewing.

To help decide in what direction I am going to head on the weekend for a film, I do what most movie goers have been doing for some 80 years: I watch the coming attractions. At one time these short but graphic blipverts had been used immediately preceding a regular film to induce theatre goers to return next week. But now they seem to be liberally spread across our television screens as well. I can still remember the power these coming attractions and marquee posters of films had on me as a child. Their ability to make me return next week for another grand adventure was overpowering. Even in today's world of instant communications and massed media, these little film segments and posters can still work their unbearable magic. The images on the larger than life drawings of the movie's action made any film seem heroic. Never mind that the actual scenes portrayed on the poster did not always correspond to the film that one went to see. They were still more than a mind could withstand. OK. I admit that I still haven't been totally cured of their lingering effects.

Oh, one last word. I am indebted to Carole Dreyer of Ingleside for her letter regarding an error I inadvertently made in describing the cast of the '40's Alfred Hitchcock movie 'Lifeboat'. Of course it was Tallulah Bankhead who starred in that classic film and not Marlene Dietrich as I had stated. For that error I apologize. In my favor, however is the fact that to almost any small boy (as I was when I first saw this picture) the difference between Marlene Dietrich and Tallulah Bankhead is very slim indeed, wet or dry.

Bill

To see or not to see, that's the question

☐ MAYBE

☐ YES
☐ NO
★ ★ ★ ?

As you may have noticed, this week's movie review column again contains no movie review. This happens every now and then for a variety of reasons. One of those reasons is that my colleague and I are different from 'other' movie critics in that we generally go to see only movies that we want to see for some reason.

So you ask "How can you be effective critics if you only see movies you know you will like?" Well, somehow it still balances out. For instance, we both had high hopes for "Superman IV", yet were both extremely disappointed by it. Also, we disagreed on "Stakeout" and "The Fourth Protocol" - in each case, one of us recommended the film and the other didn't.

Of course, our unique situation sometimes makes for some amusing conflicts behind the scenes of "Lakeland Cinema" when we face the question of "What are we going to review this time?"

For instance, I have been pushing for "Fatal Attraction", which my partner wants to avoid, saying "It's a slasher movie and I don't want to see it."

"It's not a 'slasher' film," I objected, saying that it appears there is really only one or two scenes involving a knife. He pointed out that "Psycho" also contains only a couple of scenes with a knife but it still falls in the slasher genre. I accepted this, despite the fact that I still don't see what the h— that has to do with it!!!

He, on the other hand, was rooting for "Hellraiser", because-uh, because...oh, who cares, the point is, I don't want to see it!! To me, it looks too much like the lower class side of the horror movie category- you know, the "Friday the 13th, Part 79" type.

So where did that leave us? Well, Matt's position is that he's had enough women trying to kill him in real life so why would he want to see "Fatal Attraction?" When he puts it that way, I can certainly relate to his point of view.

While regarding "Hellraiser", if I want to see people screaming and dying, and lots of horror and blood, all I have to do is look around here on deadline day.

Roseanne Barr updates the battle of the sexes

By Frank Lovece

Given that comedian Roseanne Barr is as funny as she is big, it's tempting to say, "Step up to the Barr for a bellyful." But whether the subject is weighty or witty, it's best to leave the jokes to her, as she demonstrates in her HBO special, "The Roseanne Barr Show," which has its final airing on Tuesday, Oct. 13.

Roseanne Barr

Barr's specialty is the old-fashioned battle of updated with jabs at working women, Donahue and birth control. Some of it seems like the warmed-over Borscht Belt shtick that has been a staple of TV stand-up acts from "The Ed Sullivan Show" to "On Location." But most of it has a more vicious bite. Alluding to her figure, she gets back at those svelte boutique clerks: "I eat the same amount of food you do," she brags. "I just don't puke when I'm done." A mock commercial for FemRage estrogen tablets shows the product helping her to overcome "learned submissive response." And on the Donahue/Winfrey parade of out-of-closet sexual peccadilloes, she comments: "I didn't even know it was possible to be a woman trapped in a man's body. Well, live and learn, I guess."

Her delivery ranges from deadpan to just plain dead, but she does have her own style. Regrettably, her impression of whiny-voiced husbands turns her into a female Sam Kinison, which we can do without. And her constant gum-chewing gets ludicrous after a while, evoking a stereotype she would do well to avoid.

Regardless, the HBO special breezes along. It opens and closes with Barr in a kitchen discussing the show with what appears to be (but isn't) her real family. At other points, she leaves the theater to enter a house trailer parked outside and deal with another husband and kids. Along with the satirical commercial, these segments help make this a true television concert. While few directors would think of plopping a few cameras in front of a play and calling the result a movie, too many of them just set up cameras in a nightclub and call the result a TV special. Television has its own language, and for the most part Barr and producer-director Rocco Urbisci speak it with wit and eloquence.

ROSEANNE BARR

Roseanne Barr updates the battle of the sexes

By Frank Lovece

Given that comedian Roseanne Barr is as funny as she is big, it's tempting to say, "Step up to the Barr for a bellyful." But whether the subject is weighty or witty, it's best to leave the jokes to her, as she demonstrates in her HBO special, "The Roseanne Barr Show," which has its final airing on Tuesday, Oct. 13.

Roseanne Barr

Barr's specialty is the old-fashioned battle of updated with jobs at working women, Donahue and birth control. Some of it seems like the warmed-over Borscht Belt shtick that has been a staple of TV stand-up acts from "The Ed Sullivan Show" to "On Location." But most of it has a more vicious bite. Alluding to her figure, she gets back at those svelte boutique clerks: "I eat the same amount of food you do," she brags. "I just don't puke when I'm done." A mock commercial for FemRage estrogen tablets shows the product helping her to overcome "learned submissive response." And on the Donahue/Winfrey parade of out-of-closet sexual peccadilloes, she comments: "I didn't even know it was possible to be a woman trapped in a man's body. Well, live and learn, I guess."

Her delivery ranges from deadpan to just plain dead, but she does have her own style. Regrettably, her impression of whiny-voiced husbands turns her into a female Sam Kinison, which we can do without. And her constant gum-chewing gets ludicrous after a while, evoking a stereotype she would do well to avoid.

Regardless, the HBO special breezes along. It opens and closes with Barr in a kitchen discussing the show with what appears to be (but isn't) her real family. At other points, she leaves the theater to enter a house trailer parked outside and deal with another husband and kids. Along with the satirical commercial, these segments help make this a true television concert. While few directors would think of plopping a few cameras in front of a play and calling the result a movie, too many of them just set up cameras in a nightclub and call the result a TV special. Television has its own language, and for the most part Barr and producer-director Rocco Urbisci speak it with wit and eloquence.

Roseanne Barr updates the battle of the sexes

By Frank Lovece

Given that comedian Roseanne Barr is as funny as she is big, it's tempting to say, "Step up to the Barr for a bellyful." But whether the subject is weighty or witty, it's best to leave the jokes to her, as she demonstrates in her HBO special, "The Roseanne Barr Show," which has its final airing on Tuesday, Oct. 13.

Roseanne Barr

Barr's specialty is the old-fashioned battle of updated with jabs at working women, Donahue and birth control. Some of it seems like the warmed-over Borscht Belt shtick that has been a staple of TV stand-up acts from "The Ed Sullivan Show" to "On Location." But most of it has a more vicious bite. Alluding to her figure, she gets back at those svelte boutique clerks: "I eat the same amount of food you do," she brags. "I just don't puke when I'm done." A mock commercial for FemRage estrogen tablets shows the product helping her to overcome "learned submissive response." And on the Donahue/Winfrey parade of out-of-closet sexual peccadilloes, she comments: "I didn't even know it was possible to be a woman trapped in a man's body. Well, live and learn, I guess."

Her delivery ranges from deadpan to just plain dead, but she does have her own style. Regrettably, her impression of whiny-voiced husbands turns her into a female Sam Kinison, which we can do without. And her constant gum-chewing gets ludicrous after a while, evoking a stereotype she would do well to avoid.

Regardless, the HBO special breezes along. It opens and closes with Barr in a kitchen discussing the show with what appears to be (but isn't) her real family. At other points, she leaves the theater to enter a house trailer parked outside and deal with another husband and kids. Along with the satirical commercial, these segments help make this a true television concert. While few directors would think of plopping a few cameras in front of a play and calling the result a movie, too many of them just set up cameras in a nightclub and call the result a TV special. Television has its own language, and for the most part Barr and producer-director Rocco Urbisci speak it with wit and eloquence.

THIS WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

BY SALOME

Weekly Tip: Keep your appointments.

Aries (Mar. 21-Apr. 19) Take a deep breath; you're going to soar to new heights in your personal relationships. Kin can resolve previous problems. Your mate has good ideas.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20) Stick to your guns in spite of all the obstacles. A new test of your convictions is unavoidable; an ambitious type may try to push you the wrong way.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Sure, you feel as if you've dropped a load off your shoulders, but don't start taking on new responsibilities yet. Enjoy time with your close friends now.

Cancer (June 21-Jul. 20) Feeling a bit shy these days? Little wonder, since the signs point toward confusion. When you don't know what to do, take stock of what's going on.

Leo (Jul. 21-Aug. 22) Your determination in wanting to protect your pride is understandable, but back off before you make costly errors. Ignore those ostentatious people.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Measure all the facets of a new deal. If you are your meticulous self, you can size up any situation or circumstance and come out on top of the heap.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Although you are feeling those spendthrift tendencies, you should know that a chance for a really good buy will come along if you wait it out now.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A watchful eye is essential; someone from your past is certain to make a big dent in your life now. New responsibilities can give you a needed lift.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) It's time for you to stop being so glibly concerning your business affairs. Your personal relationships should be approached realistically now.

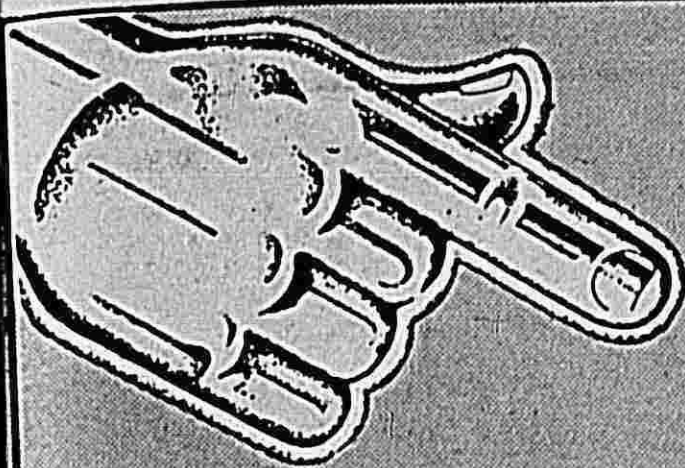

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Want to kick up your heels? Do it now! Make those plans for fun and good times with good friends, and meet new and interesting people thusly.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) A simple approach to your life is the best now. This way you can assure accuracy in everything you do. Scrutinize your romantic life now.

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar. 20) New names and places will be taking on vital importance in your life at this time. Don't, however, let anyone sway you from your strong convictions.

If you were born this week, be sure you celebrate your birth day in the inimitable style for which you are known! Before this, however, tend to the personal affairs (romances, friendships, etc.) which you have been neglecting. Your tendency to do too much at once makes people think you are "out there" sometimes, so be aware of this when you try to justify your actions.

Bridal Of That Special Day

All the familiar touches

Everything that makes weddings fabulous are here — flowers, adoring looks, lacey gown and warm wishes of their guests. But there's more since internationally known designer Pierre Cardin provides groom with formal attire.

Working women marrying kind

Today's working woman is definitely the marrying kind. Whether the decision is made at the first blush of adulthood or later in life, the U.S. Census Bureau and Dept. of Health and Human Services calculates that 95 percent of the population will eventually marry.

This means that a total of some 2.5 million weddings will take place annually in the foreseeable future, and the bride planning the majority of these weddings will be working.

According to Bride's magazine:

—Eighty-five percent of brides and 76 percent of grooms are employed.

—Of these working nearly-weds, 23 percent of both brides and grooms are in professional or managerial positions.

—Ninety-seven percent of new wives will postpone children and continue working for up to five years after marriage.

Are these executive brides different from their sisters of several decades ago?

The working bride, who checks her briefcase at the door of the bridal salon, is a far cry from the coed who received her marriage certificate with her diploma.

The new executive bride is an adult. The median age for first-time brides climbed from 19.8 in 1961 to nearly 24 years of age in 1986. And, for all brides marrying the first, second or more times, this median slides up to 27 years.

Today's bride is a winner, who is marrying a "partner," not just a husband, and plans for a life of friendship, sharing everything from childrearing to household management.

The executive bride is also a traditionalist. She is as committed to success in her marriage as she is to success in her career.

Bridal
Of That Special Day

Origin of beloved customs lie in ancient marriage rites

It happens in every wedding: The bride and groom exchange rings. They share cake. The bride throws her bouquet. But do they know how these customs began?

The bride throws her bouquet so an unmarried friend can "catch" some luck in romance, goes the modern explanation. But the custom actually started as a form of self-defense.

In times past, belief in the mystical value of a bride's adornments prompted friends and strangers alike to try to grab a piece of her outfit.

Eventually, some clever bride found that by flinging her flowers away from herself, the crowd would have something to fight over—and she would escape intact!

The wedding party originally served the serious purpose of protecting the bride and groom from the curses of evil-wishers. They dressed in clothes exactly like those of the bride and groom, so the identity of the happy couple was kept secret on the way to the church until they were safely married.

The first piece of wedding cake is cut and eaten by the bride and groom as a carry-over from the time when the sharing of food or wine often was the marriage.

Teutons, for example, were considered wed after drinking mead together for 30 days. (The word bridal comes from bride-ale.)

The aisle runner protected the bride from evil spirits who, it was thought, lived below the ground. These demons were also feared to lurk around doorways, hence the bride is carried over the threshold of her new home.

Rice symbolizes the age-old hope that the couple would be as fruitful as the earth. In France, guests shower the bride and groom with wheat; in Morocco, with raisins, figs and dates.

People clink glasses when they toast the bride and groom, in order to produce a bell-like sound. Bells, it was believed, were repellent to the devil.

"The kiss" as a significant moment in the wedding dates from the Roman Empire. At that time, the betrothal ceremony consisted of a kiss and the exchange of rings, with the kiss being the actual legal bond.

The trousseau, or dowry, was actually an early form of life insurance, since it was meant to ensure that the bride could survive without her husband if the need arose.

The wedding ring is worn on the third finger of the left hand because the pharaohs of Egypt believed a vein, the "vena amoris," ran from that finger directly to the heart.

The honeymoon began when, in ancient marriages by capture, the groom kept his bride in hiding to prevent searching relatives from finding her.

The word itself comes from the early Teutonic custom of couples drinking an aphrodisiacal honey drink for 30 days or one cycle of the moon.

Bridal Of That Special Day

Career marriage needs compromise to ease tension

Is it possible to build a strong marriage while building a career, too? With "juggling," "stress" and "burnout" the catchwords for the '80s, many married couples ask this question today. "The Career-Marriage Crunch," an article in a recent issue of

Bride's magazine, offers two-career couples this advice for keeping love alive:

-Making time for each other. Never take marriage for granted and assume that it will just take care of itself. Instead, make it a habit to guard and structure private time carefully.

Couples might make a loose agreement: "Three evenings a week are for work, weekends are just for us." Or, they could set up an actual appointment calendar, setting aside time to discuss household business, to enjoy a social life, to let romance happen.

A rule to remember: Once one makes these appointments, keep them. Respect them every bit as much as business appointments.

-Leave job stress behind. Time spent with a spouse doesn't count if one's body is there but the mind isn't, or if all conversation revolves around work.

Of course, sharing the details of the workday with a spouse is important, and now and then there will be pressures and deadlines that simply can't be put aside. But in general, one should make a clear transition between work and home.

*It's hobbies you pursue together,
Savings you accrue together,
Looks you misconstrue together —
That make marriage a joy.*

— Stephen Sondheim

Bridal Of That Special Day

Feminine look is in for attendants

Traditional styles are what's "new" in bridesmaid dressing this year. The looks are distinctly feminine, and colors are soft and pretty.

Ruffles, puffs, lace and bows all lend excitement to simple bodices, while back details, such as deep V cuts, add interest.

According to Susan Thompson, dress buyers for Susie's, a national chain of women's apparel stores, there are "increasing trends" in tea lengths, which are cut just below the calf. "Of course, long-to-the-floor lengths are still important," she reminds us.

Pink continues to reign in the number one position on the color chart, while pale yellow, aqua, peach, blue and lavender also remain popular.

In addition, some jewel tones such as red, royal, and teal are being shown.

Lace gloves, pearl jewelry and fancy hair ornaments all add feminine touches, while mid- to high-heeled pumps complete the look.

According to Bill

Wyatt, women's dress shoe buyer for Kinney Shoes, shoe styles "are starting to open up a little," with lots of cutouts and open toes.

Lace, satin and peau soie are excellent choices for bridesmaids since the materials can easily be dyed to match the dress.

In fact, some shoe stores, such as Kinney, provide this service at no additional cost to the customer.

With all the dress and show styles being shown this year, one message rings clear: The look for bridesmaids is feminine and pretty.

By all means marry; if you get a good wife, you'll become happy. If you get a bad one, you'll become a philosopher.

EVOLUTION OF MAN:
(ABRIDGED)

Catching up with city life

One of the paradoxes of suburbia is that growth and development propels some suburbs to become cities. That appears to be the case in northwest Cook County where a group of neighboring communities has set the heady goal of developing a large-scale convention center, a facility to compete with Chicago's convention centers.

The group has banded together as the Greater Woodfield Regional Convention Center. Already enjoying the prosperity and tax wealth resulting from two decades of mushroom growth, political and civic leaders aim to cash in on the large-scale expositions and convention spending that comes with them. No pie-in-the-sky sports expo off of Rte. 120 described by Waukegan visionaries some years ago. The northwest Cook County leaders are dead serious.

Even as dedicated as the leaders are locating a convention center in the vicinity of Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Itasca, Elk Grove Village and Bloomingdale, the initial funding approach has a rabbit-in-the-hat ring to it. The plan at this point amounts to passing the hat and then tapping the state to retire bonds that would be issued to build the $66 million center. The center planners aren't pikers. They want the state to guarantee at least $4 million annually.

Far be it from us to discourage the northwest Cook County leaders, although we'd feel a lot more comfortable if they would leave the state out of their financial picture. Let them have their convention center—and gridlock traffic congestion, evaporating open space and strained infrastructure.

The push for a convention center will be just one more reason for householders in that locality who relish tranquility, the country landscape and low-eye suburban lifestyles to turn their attention northward and see what Lake Zurich, Mundelein, Grayslake, and other "farther out" suburbs have to offer in true suburban living.

Job for people to choose

Members of the Lake County Board revealed their reactionary nature when 23 of them united to quickly denounce the proposal to create the post of county executive.

Upon reflection, they also seemed to decide that discretion is the better part of valor as they did not choose to file a legal challenge to the proposal. So it will go on the ballot and the voters of Lake County will decide whether or not they want to create a county executive.

That is as it should be.

There is no doubt that creating such a position would dramatically alter the way county government is conducted. An executive would appoint department heads with the approval of the board. But those department heads would serve at his pleasure.

An executive would exert much greater control over the budget process than the chairman currently does. With his veto power, it would be difficult for a minority to tie the board up in knots as is the case right now.

Most important, the executive would have to be responsive to all voters in the county, not just to those in one of six districts. Too often in the past, the chairman has been mindful of what people in his own district think at the expense of residents in other districts.

The proposal will be on the ballot for the March, 1988 primaries. The debate on its merits has already begun. County board members have claimed it will be terribly expensive and that it will create an enormous amount of conflict. They have not noted out loud that it will also cut deeply into the power of individual board members.

The decision is in the hands of the people. The best campaign tactic for those county board members who want to defeat it will be to show that the board can get the job done under the present system.

50 commendable years

In Illinois, wetlands once dominated more than 23 percent of the landscape. Today that figure is probably less than two percent. Nowhere else in the state have the wetlands been decimated more than Lake County. As has been learned all too well during local flooding the past several years, there is a purpose for wetlands. They are nature's "holding tanks." Wetlands also provide homes for all sorts of living creatures and provide sanctuaries for migratory birds.

In 1937, a group of sportsmen organized Ducks Unlimited to do what no one else could—preserve and restore the essential wetlands of North America to provide a proper environment for North America's wild waterfowl whose numbers had dwindled to less than 30 million birds.

On its 50th anniversary, DU has logged an enviable record, raising nearly $400 million toward the fight to save wetland habitats and carve a conservation record unmatched for a private sector organization. Ducks Unlimited, 600,000 members strong, is headquartered on a hill overlooking Gilmer Rd. in Fremont Twp. The national organization with an international reputation, technically located in Long Grove, rightly can be regarded as one of Lake County's most admired resources.

As was noted in Outdoor Highlights, the Illinois Dept. of Conservation magazine, DU wetlands projects benefit more than just ducks and geese. At least 40 species of mammals, 19 species of fish and more than 200 species of birds benefit from DU endeavors.

Ducks Unlimited is to be congratulated on its past record, and we wish DU well in its next 50 years.

Letters To The Editor

Need expertise

Editor:

The leadership, direction and actions of the current Antioch village board indicate that Antioch is in dire need of professional assistance in community planning and development.

Billboard displays mar roadways, apartments are zoned and rezoned at will, and pole barn dwellings are indiscriminately located in the business district. The village board, planning commission, zoning commission and clerk's office all have some members with vested economic interests in billboards, apartments and zoning.

Recent decisions by the village board make it blatantly obvious that they do not have the expertise to adequately plan for the needs of our community. The "plan" the village is operating on is a "plan" that is continually modified to benefit those connected with the present administration. It is time to disassemble the "good old boy" method of doing village business!

Let's declare a moratorium on all zoning changes and multiple family dwellings; then, we should hire a professionally trained planner to write a new comprehensive plan. Only then will we be able to grow in a reasonable and rational way.

Picayune provincials

Editor:

The "trials" of Oliver North and Robert Bork have been a tremendous learning experience for perceptive Americans.

When they consider the political giants produced 200 years ago, by a tiny nation of 3 million souls, and compare them with the demagogic pygmies who now compose the majority of those sent to Congress by a country of 250 million, they should be ashamed.

Let all Americans resolve, right now, that at any future election, they will select Congressmen and Senators who will serve America first, not themselves or any limited special interest group.

Let's all be Americans for America, not just a bunch of picayune provincials.

Enjoy fall color
this weekend
with local trip

by BILL SCHROEDER

This is the weekend that mother nature will be decked out in her most colorful finery, an excellent time to take to the highways and byways of Lake County/Lakeland area to enjoy the panorama of fall color.

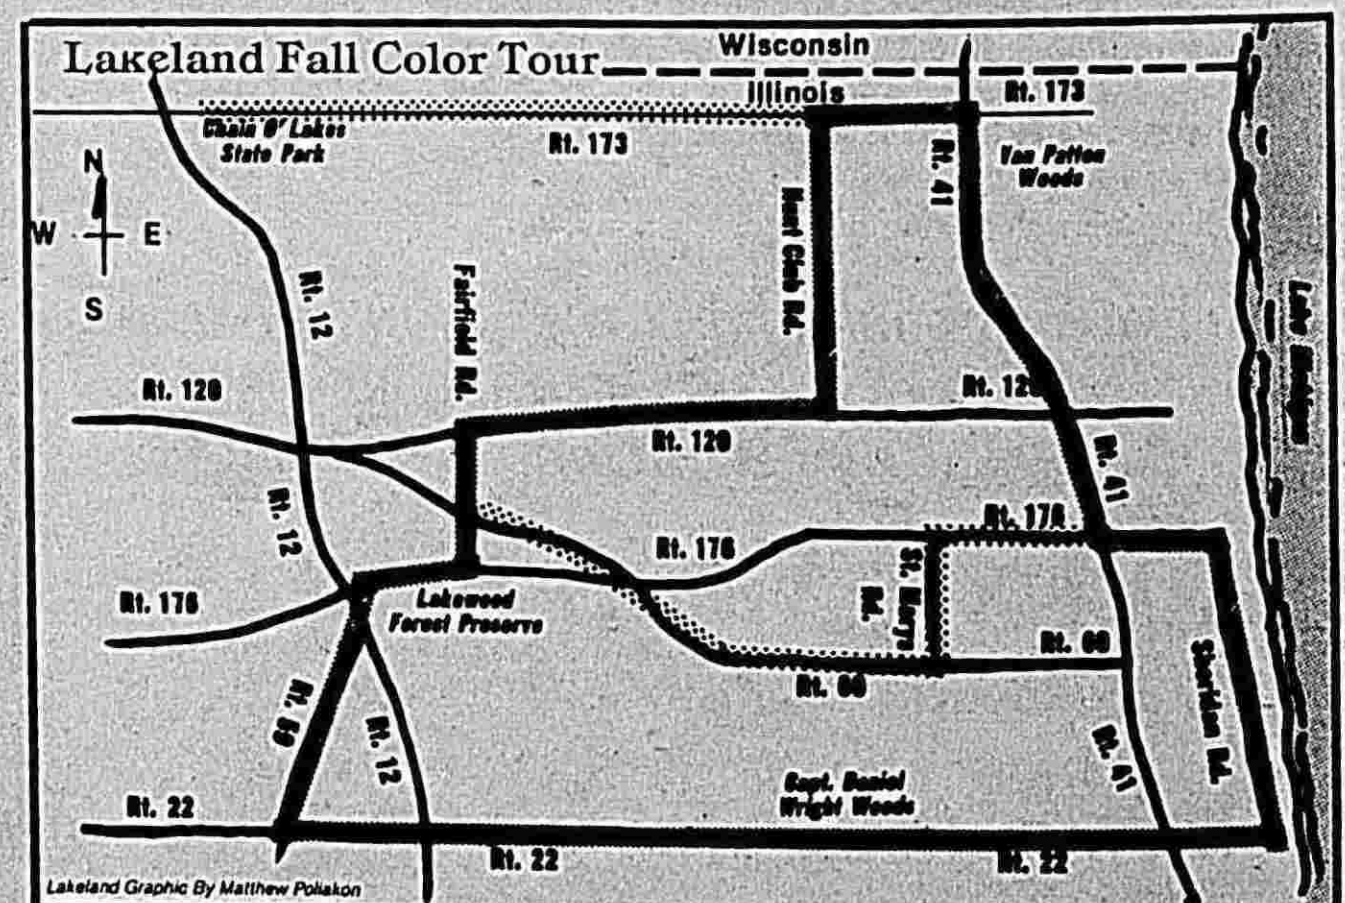

With the help of several staff writers, your Viewpoint columnist came up with a route guaranteed to afford even the most ardent foliage fanciers a rainbow of fall color. The main route (indicated in black) will take you past a variety of Lake County scenery — North shore mansions, country suburban, village and rolling countryside. There's an alternate (indicated in broken line) if you want to shorten the trip. There's a side trip (broken line) to a state park.

Our Viewpoint sojourn takes you to or past Chain O' Lakes State Park, Capt. Daniel Wright Woods, Lakewood Forest Preserve and Van Patten Woods. On the way you'll find roadside stands, some of the county's famed apple orchards and a wide variety of eating spots. If you're adventurous, take some side trips. We invite you to begin your journey at any point along the route.

Fall color is yours for the asking. Have an enjoyable trip.

THIRD ENTRANT—The local Republican Presidential sweepstakes isn't all Bush and Dole. A third dimension was added Tuesday night, Oct. 6, at a meeting of the 10th district Jack Kemp for President Committee at Lake Forest College. Scott Elliot led a discussion on campaign issues and organization. Elliot is looking for calls at (312)256-4470 for persons interested in working for Kemp.

ONE MAN'S FAMILY—Bob has the kitchen table covered with college applications. Like so many other high school seniors, he's going through the agonizing process of deciding where to apply. Mom and pop can only provide minimal assistance. Where to go to college is one of the first big decisions in a person's life. And it seems to be getting more difficult all the time, even in a household where we've had some experience.

County board needs deep cuts to be effective

A CROWDED ROOM. Waukegan Mayor Bob Sabonjian is asked if he will be a candidate for county executive if it is approved.

"Well, I think I'd do pretty well in the east part of the county, but I don't know about the west," he says.

Sheriff Mickey Babcox calls out, "Say, Bob, how do you feel about the sheriff's department getting a helicopter?"

"I'm all for it. It should have been done a long time ago," Sabonjian responds.

"You've got the west part of the county," Babcox deadpans.

THE LAKE VILLA Twp. Republican Club had a fine Oktoberfest last weekend. It was their first ever and replaced the picnic as their major fundraiser.

State Rep. Robert Churchill (R-Lake Villa) was the chief bartender. Waterway Management Agency Trustee "Bud" Scott was a chef, cooking up County Board Rep. Fred Popp's special recipe for bratwurst. Some people were worried about the weather, apparently unaware that the party was to be held indoors.

There was a fine German band and everyone was having fun. Given a few years, this should become as big a tradition as Grant Twp.'s Lincoln Day Dinner and Wauconda's Corned Beef and Cabbage Dinner.

The day after that, Larry Leafblad and Suzi Schmidt held a picnic in Leafblad's back yard. Leafblad and Schmidt are challenging Popp and Jim Fields (R-Antioch) for the open Republican seats in Dist. 4.

The turnout was phenomenal. Almost 300 people showed up during the day and they came from all townships in the district.

I live in Dist. 4 and this is going to be a tough one. Back in my trumpet-playing days, I used to play with Leafblad (not, unfortunately, in the Scotch Lads). Schmidt was one of my wife's teachers in school. Fields is a gentleman. At the Oktoberfest, he helped get my 15-month-old son into the back pack I carry him around in. I've played pool and lost, but had a few good times with Popp anyway.

I consider all of them friends. In the end, I will choose candidates based on who I believe will do the most effective job.

In spite of my sometimes pointed commentaries, there are very few politicians I don't like. As a breed, most try to do their best as they see it. Many worry themselves sick about how each decision will affect their chances of reelection.

Most of us, in our private lives, muddle through doing the best we can while screwing up from time to time. Politicians have to make their mistakes in front of God and everybody.

The only politicians I really don't like are the raw opportunists, the fellows who would sell their people down the river for personal gain. I've met a few of those but fortunately, there are not as many as people think.

SOME COUNTY BOARD members have taken much offense at my comments about the county executive. They don't like my comments about how little gets done on the 10th floor.

Well, hey, folks, it's nothing personal. You, like the rest of us in Lake County, are caught in a bad system. It is ridiculous in a county of almost a half million people not to have an executive branch of government. It is equally ridiculous to have 24 county board members.

Larger counties operate with fewer board members. I suspect that, with 24, there is not enough work to go around and keep everybody busy so members have too much time to squabble. With six relatively small districts, why do we elect four members from each?

Why not go to seven or nine single member districts, make the jobs full-time, and expect members to do more work than posturing?

One of the problems is that there is a constant battle for dominance within each district. In my district, the pro-Norm Geary (R-Grayslake) and the anti-Geary forces are constantly battling for supremacy. In Dist. 5, the Mike Graham (R-Libertyville) faction and the Bob Depke faction are continually battling. In Dist. 6, it's Gerald Beyer (R-Wauconda) versus C. Richard Anderson (R-Barrington). Nobody loses, everybody wins, and each candidate spends four years trying to prove that he is the kingpin of the district. Only the public loses.

Let's do it the American way. Go to single-member districts, let the voters choose who is the stronger in their district, and defer the battles for dominance until the next election.

GERALD BEYER (R-WAUCONDA) has announced his candidacy for reelection in Dist. 6. He will kick off his campaign with a fundraiser on Tuesday, Oct. 13, beginning at 6:30 p.m. at Mers Restaurant in Wauconda.

Tickets are $10 each. The party will feature free hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar. For reservations call (312) 526-6281.

ONE MORE THING, I have told Democrats repeatedly that I would give them more coverage if they would send me information. In a year and a half, I still have not been able to get a simple schedule of upcoming events from them.

I talked to a friend on the Democratic Central Committee and was told that every month they discuss sending out a calendar of events but it never happens. I maintain that Linda Hess and John Matijevich keep winning elections, in part, because they let the press and supporters know what they are doing.

OFF THE WALL

DO IT TODAY, TOMORROW IT MAY BE AGAINST THE LAW

CUB works to keep utility bills in line

by NANCY SCHROEDER

The days for rubber stamping rate hikes are over claims CUB, the Citizens Utility Board. CUB is an organization working for the people of Illinois and the businesses that make up our state.

In 1983 Illinois citizens decided that they had had enough. Faced with some of the highest utility rates in the nation and prospects of even higher rates in the future, consumers called for creation of an organization to fight on their behalf. The Illinois General Assembly responded and the Citizens Utility Board - CUB - was born.

Today, CUB is an effective and respected voice for all Illinois consumers. Despite opposition from the powerful utility lobby, CUB is winning important victories before the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC), the agency that regulates the utilities, in the courts and the state legislature. These victories are saving ratepayers hundreds of millions of dollars each year.

CUB blocked a $600 million rate hike proposal by Commonwealth Edison. This hike, had it been approved, would have raised a typical consumer's bill $60 to $100 a year and that of an average small business by $884. CUB persuaded the ICC to say "No" to Com-Ed. CUB is now asking a $500 million rate reduction from Edison.

When an Illinois utility seeks a rate hike, it presents the ICC with a vast array of experts - attorneys, engineers, economists and accountants who give technical arguments in support of the company's demands. The high fees these experts charge are ultimately borne by the ratepayers. In the past, consumers didn't have the resources to challenge the utilities' arguments, so the rate hikes were approved. That's why CUB was formed. CUB hires the same kinds of experts to challenge the utilities' facts and figures and argue on behalf of consumers.

CUB is not a government agency, though it was created by state statute and its duties and obligations are mandated by state law. It is not state-run and receives no government funding. CUB members, residential and small-business utility consumers throughout the state, fund and control the organization. Twenty-two CUB directors, one from each Illinois Congressional Dist., have been elected by dues-paying CUB members to direct the organization's work. A staff of experts is responsible for the organization's daily operations.

Membership is not limited to a select group; its membership drive is now in full swing, looking to consumers, businesses and anyone who would like to contribute to their continued efforts in the days to come stopping the continued outrageous price hikes crammed down our throats. They are representing all of us. The Citizens Utility Board is located at 108 N. State St., Rm. 1202, Chicago, 60602.

SPORTS BRIEFS

One long night

Fans attending both the sophomore and varsity contests at Stevenson Saturday were in for a long evening. Because the sophomore game was long and the varsity started late, football fans who braved the cold saw five hours of football. As an aside, one had to wonder why an electric fan was in the press box that night.

Confidence

When Antioch's football team started the season, the Sequoits used a two-heads-are-better-than one theory at quarterback. Coach Steve Wapon alternated between senior James Keim and soph Jon DeBarnardis. Now, the Sequoits are using only DeBarnardis.

"DeBarnardis is getting better every game," Wapon said after Antioch tipped Mundelein 21-14 Saturday.

It took patience on both Wapon and DeBarnardis' part to get the soph to the point he has reached, though.

"Coach Wapon never yells at me or anything. When I throw an interception, he just tells me what I did wrong," DeBarnardis said.

According to Antioch defensive coordinator Mike Gordy, the switch has given ACHS the added weapon of Keim as a wide receiver.

Small numbers

From the 'could it happen here department': Huntley, a high school in southwestern McHenry County, forfeited the mid portion of its season because of dwindling numbers. After an opening-season loss, the Redskins were down to 11 players. But there is a bright side - the community, which appreciates high school football, rallied behind the new formed Redskins. The Big Eight Conference did level a fine against Huntley and the team's conference games will not be counted next year. Perhaps Lake County coaches should remember the Huntley story when their numbers start to fall off.

Playoff possibilities

Playoff possibilities for teams are starting to dwindle as the season reaches its make-or-break point.

Lake Zurich, with an impressive 28-0 win over Johnsburg, is still alive with a 3-2 record. That's pretty much it in the Northwest Suburban Conference, though.

In the North Suburban, North Chicago and Antioch lead the post-season play hopefuls. Both are 3-2, but the Warhawks have the edge because they defeated the Sequoits earlier this year.

In the hope and pray department, Warren needs to win all of its remaining games to have a shot at the post-season action.

Missing football

Although Grant found little to be cheerful about in a 35-17 loss to Marian Central Friday, there was at least one lighthearted moment. Everything was all set for Grant's kickoff except one thing. The football was missing. After a short pause, the official got the ball back from youngsters playing catch behind a fence. The incident gave at least the Marian Central fans a good chuckle.

In trouble

Lake Zurich Bears quarterback Todd Kuklinski appears to be in trouble as Round Lake applies heavy pass rush. Lake Zurich won Northwest Suburban Conference battle, though.

Antioch, Warren renew rivalry

Sometimes, all winning football takes is a belief in yourself.

And a little help from the officials never hurt.

Antioch will be hoping that both factors will once again be in their favor when the Sequoits host Warren Oct. 10. The renewal of the traditional rivalry begins at 2 p.m. in Antioch.

"In order for people to believe in themselves, sometimes coaches have to believe in them. We've talked a lot about believing in yourself this season," Antioch coach Steve Wapon said.

The Sequoits will be coming off a 21-14 win over Mundelein which featured the host team coming back from a two-touchdown deficit and a controversial call which turned the momentum to Antioch's favor. The win improved Antioch's record to 3-2, while Mundelein slipped to 2-3.

In Warren, the Sequoits will be facing this year's hard-luck team in the North Suburban Conference. The Blue Devils lost a heartbreaker - 7-0 to Zion-Benton in an overtime at home. That marked the third time that the Blue Devils, now 2-3, have lost in the final seconds or overtime.

But throughout the week in Antioch, the football talk was about what will be referred to from now on as "The Call".

Trailing 14-0, Antioch's Scott Gooch caught a 21-yard touchdown pass from sophomore quarterback Jon DeBarnardis. At first, the official waved the pass incomplete, stating that Gooch did not have both feet in bounds.

"He had both feet in bounds," Antioch's assistant coaches yelled in unison in the press box.

Wapon yelled, too and called a timeout to discuss the play with officials. In a historic move, the head official overruled the referee who made the call and the touchdown and ensuing extra point made it 14-7.

"It took a lot of courage to change the call. It was clearly the right call," Wapon said.

Obviously, Mundelein mentor Gary Heifner thought differently.

"That was the worst call I've seen in 20 years. If he made an error, he should have corrected it right away, not after both teams were lined up. That was the momentum builder," Heifner said.

From then on, the game's edged belonged to the inspired Sequoits.

Antioch's Fred Locher recovered a Mundelein fumble at the Mustangs' 26.

David Wick picked up 15 yards on his next carry and added two on his second. Brad Naumann then slipped through the Mundelein defense for nine yards and a TD. Gooch's extra point tied the game at 14-14 midway through the second quarter.

Neither team could gain more than one first down in the third quarter but Antioch went to old reliable - Wick - when the Sequoits needed to on the game-winning drive.

Antioch started at its own 46 midway through the fourth quarter.

Wick, a senior, then carried the ball seven of the next eight plays. The last two yards were good for an Antioch touchdown for a 21-14 lead with just 2:21 left.

"When we need the tough yards, we'll go to Wick," Wapon said.

Wapon said he was "very proud" of the interior linemen, a young group going up against a Mundelein line which averaged more than 200 pounds.

Following Wick's touchdown, the Mustangs did give Antioch a scare. Mundelein reached the Antioch 14 before Antioch defensive back Bradley Mandernack stepped in front of a Mundelein receiver to intercept a pass from Mustang QB John Bagley and preserve the win.

"I asked Mandernack why he did not just tip the ball and he said he wanted to make sure he had it," Antioch defensive coordinator Mike Gordy said.

The Mustangs' defense dominated the game early. An interception of a DeBarnardis pass by Dan Casper gave the visitors the ball at the Antioch 39.

It took Mundelein just one play to score - a reverse run by junior Steve Hartmann. The extra point by Dan Lucas gave the visitors an early 7-0 lead with 7:50 left in the first quarter.

In the end, Heifner said one of the factors which hurt Mundelein was Antioch's depth.

"Their platoon system wore us down," he said.

It did not help the Mundelein cause, either when Tim Sadoski, one of their better linemen, was thrown out of the game in a fight. Antioch objected because their player was also thrown out.

Mundelein will try and regroup when the Mustangs host Libertyville Oct. 10. The Mustangs upset the Wildcats at Libertyville last year.

Corsairs are strong for Homecoming

Can Carmel's offense keep it up?

The Corsairs' offense, in hiding for three weeks after a 35-0 win over Waukegan East, came to life at Proviso West with a 30-0 romping over St. Joseph at Proviso West Sunday.

The Corsairs will be hoping to keep that momentum going when they host Holy Cross in the annual Homecoming contest Oct. 9. Game time is 8 p.m. in Mundelein.

Carmel coach Mike Fitzgibbons, who saw his team improve to 2-3 overall, 1-2 in the East Suburban Catholic Conference with the win over St. Joseph, is hoping the Corsairs do not take winless Holy Cross lightly.

"Hopefully we do not look at any of our remaining games like that. I hope we learned our lesson," Fitzgibbons said.

Grayslake, Wauconda collide in battle for more momentum

One team looking for self respect while another shooting for mid-season momentum will be the main attractions when Grayslake travels to Wauconda Oct. 10.

The Northwest Suburban Conference game begins at 1 p.m.

"Fred (Wauconda coach Loffredo) likes to do a lot of different things. I expect some tricky things from them," Grayslake coach Harold Jahnke said.

Grayslake, now 1-2 in the NWSC and 1-4 overall, is coming into the contest following a 12-7 upset win over Round Lake last week. For Wauconda, the fifth game represents another chance to crack the victory column. The winless Bulldogs lost 26-6 at Marengo last week.

"They have a good passer (quarterback Timm West) and a good runner (Jason Samuelson)," Loffredo said of the Rams.

The Rams are coming off a contest which Jahnke calls the team's best passing game. Grayslake quarterback West threw for two touchdowns and the defense did the rest.

"Our defense played very, very well as a unit. That was the best game we've played as a unit," Jahnke said.

About the passing game, Jahnke said: "I think our offense has improved every week. In the fourth quarter we had a long drive without one pass and that showed our character," Jahnke said.

The wind gusts were as much of a factor at Round Lake as the Rams or Panthers. The Rams won the battle for the wind.

"If you had the win, you could pass and kick. If you did not have the wind, you couldn't. Field position had a lot to do with it," Jahnke said.

Both Grayslake touchdowns came on the same type of plays - a streak down the sideline after a fake to run the ball. A 50 yard pass from West to Chris Walker gave GL a 6-0 lead with 3:15 left in the opening quarter.

Round Lake then snatched a 7-6 advantage. After Grayslake fumbled a punt, the Panthers had possession at the Rams' 10. Quarterback Todd Collis did the honors for Round Lake, scoring from four yards out. The extra point gave Round Lake a 7-6 lead at halftime.

In the third quarter, a 30-yard pass from West to Shawn Mauritz gave Grayslake the 12-7 win.

Round Lake threatened in the fourth quarter, but ran out of time. A long Grayslake drive was the main culprit.

Meanwhile at Marengo, the Indians simply overpowered Wauconda.

"They're big; they pretty much knocked us down," Loffredo said.

Marengo, which improved its record to 3-2 overall, 2-1 in the NWSC, was led on offense by running back Shane Rankins. Rankins scored TD's on a one-yard run in the first quarter and a five-yard run midway through the third quarter.

Ahead 6-0, the Indians showed they can come up with a trick or two. Runningback Tony Kunde faked a run and threw a 48-yard pass to Bryan McCartney for a 12-0 Marengo lead. The two-point conversion made it 14-0 at halftime.

Jason Mishler scored the Indians' last touchdown, a four-yard run in the fourth quarter.

Wauconda quarterback Mark Sutherland directed the Bulldogs a touchdown march in the final minute of play. Running back Matt Smyth plunged in from the one with :42 seconds left.

Grant sports teams busy

Grant High School's sports teams face a busy week as seasons draw to a close.

The volleyball squad travels to North Chicago Oct. 14 in a non-league game. The Bulldogs then close out the regular Northwest Suburban Conference season by hosting Lake Zurich Oct. 15, Round Lake Oct. 20 before traveling to Grayslake Oct. 22.

The tennis team will compete at the NWSC meet at Grayslake Oct. 9 and 10.

Osteopathic Medicine Comes to Antioch

Some people might be surprised to discover their family practitioner, the doctor who has nurtured their family through years of accident and illness, is not a M.D. (doctor of medicine) but rather a D.O. (doctor of osteopathic medicine). Osteopathy is a proven medical practice, yet confusion still reigns concerning this discipline. Some folks think osteopathic physicians are bone specialists. They are wrong. Others believe osteopathy relates exclusively to back problems. They're wrong too.

An osteopathic physician is a versatile medical doctor with the same extensive education and training as an M.D. However, the D.O. is also skilled in manipulation, sophisticated hand techniques that can be effective in diagnosis and treatment of certain musculoskeletal problems. The D.O. recognizes that all body systems, including the musculoskeletal system are interdependent and a problem in one can lead to a problem in another.

"Many of the patients I see have never heard the term D.O. or have serious misconceptions of what my profession entails," says Dr. Mark Bowman. "The truth is that I am a family practitioner, using the same methods and techniques as my associate the M.D. The difference is that for certain conditions I will utilize manipulation as an adjunct treatment to prescription drugs or whatever the standard treatment might be."

Manipulation includes a range of skilled hand movements. The D.O. learns these techniques through years of study at a certified school of osteopathic medicine. Manipulation may take the form of high velocity, low amplitude movement or muscle relaxing techniques such as soft tissue massage, muscle stretches and counter strains. These techniques do not inflict discomfort on the patient, in fact many of them feel quite pleasant and relaxing.

"Through manipulation, we can probe for bone abnormality, so the procedure has diagnostic as well as treatment capabilities," explains Dr. Chris Bowman. "When a patient complains of a painful muscle spasm it is often caused by a bone abnormality. Frequently the abnormality can be found and corrected through manipulation techniques."

Dr. Chris Bowman (left) and Dr. Mark Bowman.

It is important to understand that manipulation is an adjunct treatment available to the D.O., not the underlying foundation of his/her practice. "Naturally, I don't practice manipulation on every patient I see," says Dr. Mark Bowman. "When a patient comes to me with a sore throat I examine them and prescribe the correct medication as an M.D. would do. The biggest misconception regarding my profession is that all I do is manipulation. There is an individual who fits that description, the chiropractor. I am a medical doctor who incorporates manipulation into my practice along with many other diagnostic and treatment modalities."

Osteopathy was founded more than 100 years ago by a M.D. who believed the medical professional of his day took too narrow a view. Dr. Andrew Still believed that because the circulatory and nervous system integrated the entire body, a problem in one could cause a problem in another. He professed that the musculoskeletal system played an important role in many diseases and devised a set of manipulations that could treat dysfunction in the vertebrae, joints and ligaments.

While Still's ideas remained suspect for many years, scientific research finally unearthed support for his theories. Today M.D.s and D.O.s work side by side in the nation's top health care facilities. Osteopathy is found to be especially useful in cases where bone degeneration or muscular strain is either the subject of treatment or a side effect of a medical condition.

Dr. Mark Bowman and Dr. Chris Bowman have office hours six days a week. To schedule an appointment call (312) 395-0085.

Skyhawks, Bulldogs to collide in Grant's Homecoming

The last time Grant and Johnsburg clashed in Northwest Suburban Conference football wars, some 2,000 people cramed into the stands at Johnsburg High's field to watch.

First place in the NWSC was on the line, Grant's defense had a shutout streak going and it was Johnsburg's Homecoming.

When the two teams clash at Grant Oct. 10, there will be very little resemblance to last year's battle. But the 1 p.m. game will be Grant's Homecoming.

Both the host Bulldogs and the Skyhawks come in the contest badly in need of a league win. Grant, now 2-1 in the NWSC and 3-2 overall, lost at Marian Central 35-17 last week. Johnsburg fell to 1-2, 2-3 with a 28-0 loss at the hands of Lake Zurich.

"Johnsburg has an explosive, multiple offense," Grant coach Mike Rogowski said.

Johnsburg features running back Erik Mellum as its main threat. But against the Bears, penalties (157 yards) and stiff Lake Zurich defense held Mellum to 40 yards.

In addition to cutting down penalties, Johnsburg coach Mike Roberts knows his team's No. 1 priority can be boiled down to three words: stop Kevin Frystak.

"Frystak is definitely their main threat. We have to do everything we can to shut him down," Roberts said.

Marian Central did - at least for three quarters, anyway.

Meanwhile, the Hurricanes' offense, led by quarterback Jim Hartlieb, was making a shambles of the Grant defense. Hartlieb threw for two touchdowns, ran for a third while completing 11 passes.

It did not take the Grant fans who tarveled to Woodstock long to know, that this contest may not end up the same as last year's 20-6 Grant win at home.

Marian drove 63 yards in six plays with Hartlieb scoring from one-yard out. The extra point made it 7-0 MC three minutes into the game.

A 27-yard field goal by David Rudkin trimmed the margin to 7-3 at the beginning of the second quarter, and that gave Bulldogs hope.

The Hurricanes quickly dashed those hopes, as Hartlieb directed a 58-yard drive. Greg Penza caught a 12 yard pass from Hartlieb for a 14-3 Marian lead with 9:04 left.

Then came the crusher.

Grant drove all the way to the Marian eight-yard line on its ensuing drive. The offense was beginning to move the football and Frystak was beginning to break loose. But with the ball at the eight and Rudkin lined up for a field goal, a penalty moved the ball 10 yards deeper. Rudkin then missed the 32-yard field goal.

Marian quickly took advantage of Grant's mistake. Hartlieb found Pete Heinker open down the sideline for a 50-yard TD strike in the final minute of the first half. That gave the hosts an insurmountable 21-3 halftime lead.

The Hurricanes netted two quick touchdowns in the third quarter - on a four-yard run by Tony Lawrence following a fumble and a 21-yard run by Jim Reed. Reed's touchdown gave Marian a 35-3 blowout.

Grant did come back with two consolation scores in the final quarter - one against Marian's second team, another against the first.

"You have to give them credit. They scored against our first team," Marian Central coach don Penza said.

A three-yard run by Frystak with 4:47 left made it 35-10. Frystak then scored again on a pitchout from quarterback Joe Wach for a 46-yard scamper with 3:28 left.

Lake Zurich seeks win for Homecoming, playoff chance

For the winner of the Lake Zurich-Marengo Northwest Suburban Conference football game Oct. 10, the remaining three games will be spent hoping for wins and a playoff berth.

For the loser, finishing with a winning record or keeping faint playoff hopes alive will be the quest.

The game, Lake Zurich's Homecoming, will begin at 1 p.m.

Both teams are coming off big NWSC wins which improved their league records to 2-1. Lake Zurich (3-2 overall) crushed Johnsburg 28-0 while Marengo devoured Wauconda 26-6.

"Our ultimate goal is 7-2, but first we have to worry about getting to 4-2," Lake Zurich coach Wayne Kuklinski said.

In Marengo, the Bears will be facing an Indian team known for its size and running game. Although the Indians did score on a halfback pass last week, rushing has been their top threat.

"They'll try to play ball control offense and dominate the line of scrimmage," Kuklinski said.

The Bears clicked both with the rush and the pass in ruining Johnsburg's 10th Homecoming Saturday.

Lake Zurich finished with 170 yards rushing and 80 yards passing. Six different receivers caught Lake Zurich's nine pass receptions.

"We had a little bit of everything," Kuklinski said.

The visitors scored on their first drive of the first quarter. After an interception of a Johnsburg quarterback Bill Gahlbeck pass, halfback Chris Boucher scored on a reverse.

The Bears used the passing game to score the second of four touchdowns. Quarterback Todd Kuklinski tossed a seven-yard strike to Troy Ong for a 14-0 margin.

An 81-yard punt return by Mike Baillie put the visitors ahead 21-0 in the third quarter. The other second half score came on a three-yard run by Ryan O'Neill.

Defensively, Lake Zurich shutdown Erik Mellum, Johnsburg's top runner, holding him to 40 yards.

"We wanted to make them throw the ball," Kuklinski said.

Johnsburg did - some 26 times and only completed eight.

"Their secondary people did a good job. Their job was to with our guys regardless of what was going on elsewhere on the field," Johnsburg coach Mike Roberts said.

Lake Zurich also benefited from 157 yards in penalties by the Skyhawks.

Mustangs aim to 'pass' test

Mundelein's volleyball team will be hoping to gain some self confidence at the Elg Grove tournament Oct. 10.

The Mustangs lost two conference matches and one non-league battle last week to fall to 3-11-1 overall, 1-5 in North Suburban Conference.

Passing skills will be the keys to the rest of the season, according to coach Dan Szmykowiak. Mundelein lost to

Warren 15-12, 15-4 before falling to Round Lake in three games. Against the Panthers, the Mustangs won the first game 15-11 but lost the second and third by 15-12 scores.

Good news about prostate cancer.

More than 90,000 men were diagnosed last year with prostate cancer-and more than 26,000 died. But, prostate cancer can be cured if detected early.

The good news for Lake County is new ultrasound detection equipment in the area-now available as part of a comprehensive program for the evaluation of prostate diseases and disorders.

The program offers complete diagnostic and treatment capabilities, including biopsies which can be performed without the need for hospitalization.
